"Alas! that truth to treacherous dissemblance
Should sometimes bow the knee;
And double shame, that right and wrong's resemblance
Of beareth such identity."

The "June Week" dates at Annapolis have been fixed, and let us hope that every flapper in town has one.

East Side, West Side, all around the town,
Al is strangely missing in his little hat of brown,
While the crowds are waiting, Al goes out for a walk,
On his brief vacation from the sidewalks of New York.

Secretary Macey, of the State Central Committee, denies that Herbert Hoover has been named as second choice in Idaho, but he must admit it was a good claim while it lasted.

There is no use in putting it off any longer—the Prince of Wales will just have to go and take some riding lessons.

The bomb that takes a frightful toll of lives in Milan fastens the houses of Savoy and Mussolini more firmly in power; the task of saving Italy from the Red Terror is simplified.

The resemblance to the late Chicago crime wave which instantly occurs to one is somewhat heightened by the curious coincidence that Milan also sacrifices a member of the Esposito family.

With more than a thousand "Reds" under arrest in Japan another claw of the Dragon Communism is in a fair way to be hacked off. More and more is the profound wisdom of the policy of this Government since the rise of bolshevism borne home to those who were determined that the bomb should not replace Constitutional government.

Speaking of terrorism, we have enough at home without opening our front door to the emissaries of Moscow—a couple of Minnesota towns appeal to the State government for protection against lawless bands which take some of the curse off of Milan.

The farm bill for the relief of the down-trodden politicians of the country passes the Senate as the House prepares to take up flood control, and we expect any day now to see Congress being taken white rabbits out of a silk hat.

"Hail, men-o-war's men—safeguards of your Nation,
Here is an end, at last, of all privation;
You've got your pay—spare all you can afford
To welcome Little Buttercup on board."

Five girl stowaways are carried out to sea on many U. S. warships—why, they'll be wanting to go to Annapolis next. As Mr. W. S. Gilbert would say—

"Sailors sprightly
Always rightly,
Welcome ladies so politely."

Official of the National Electric Light Association tells the Federal Trade Commission that he never gave a legislator a bottle of whisky in his life. The stingy thing.

Bernard MacFadden says that the road to health is to cut out the three square meals a day and do a lot of walking barefooted, but to whom was this lecture delivered, anyhow, the Hobo Convention?

Senator Moses apologizes to Senator Cousins. The "Melody Way Method" is a short cut to harmony.

It doesn't make much difference now whether Gov. Len Small fills that vacancy in the Senate or not, as since Senator Deneen increased so in stature it's hardly noticeable.

"There was once a whale,
A Greenland whale,
Who swam all night
With a sperm-oil light
Off the coast of Jersey-o!"

"In the North Sea lived a whale"—but at the rate at which he is competing with Standard Oil he won't be living there long. Here's a tale of murder on the high seas to make one blubber.

An insanity plea at the last moment stays the execution of Charlie Birger, our celebrated R. F. D. gangster. He's crazy to get out.

There is only one hope and consolation in the brooding mystery which enshrouds the Atlantic flight of Hans and Fritz and Mike—no radio has reported them as being over Marblehead, Mass., so they may, God grant, come through.

With all due respect to Gatticazza, who is not so Foxy, Washington has a Grand opera house, but it is dedicated to Jazz.

FIVE GIRLS FOUND ABOARD NAVY SHIPS WITH SCOUT FLEET

Search for 15-Year-Old, Missing, Nets Her and Four More Women.

STOWAWAYS SENT ASHORE IN FLORIDA

Vessels Ransacked on Wilbur Order; Sailor Arrested and Inquiry Started.

Key West, Fla., April 12 (A.P.).—Five young women who sought adventure on the high seas via naval destroyers as stowaways tonight were back on dry land destined to return to "home ports" by more conventional means, while one of Uncle Sam's gobs was under arrest and an official investigation has been ordered.

Presence of the five women aboard the vessels accustomed to only male crews was disclosed when a general search of destroyers in Southern waters was ordered by Secretary of Navy Wilbur today on information from the St. Petersburg, Fla., chief of police that a girl from there was reported hidden aboard the Destroyer Billingsley.

Four young women were put ashore here from the U. S. S. Concord, when they were discovered during the general search. They gave their names as Billy Lacer, Rose McGuire, Flossie Rice and Ramilda Aray and said they "shipped" aboard the destroyer at New Orleans to return to their homes at Philadelphia.

Father Demands Inquiry.
The fifth, Cynthia Albert Poole, 15-year-old school girl, of St. Petersburg, was put ashore at Mayport, Fla., from the destroyer Billingsley. Her father, Joseph Poole, has asked Secretary Wilbur to investigate "the matter and determine how a girl could stow away aboard a United States destroyer and get as far as his daughter did without being discovered."

It was Cynthia's becoming an unlisted passenger of the Billingsley that brought about the search that disclosed four other girls also passengers not on a destroyer's muster roll. She confided in a chum before her adventure, and the chum told her parents today, resulting in the wire to Secretary Wilbur.

Found Hidden in Boat.
After being discovered hidden in a small boat on board the Billingsley she told the commander that she had been persuaded to stow away by a sailor named Kramer, whom she met at a soft drink stand in St. Petersburg while the Billingsley was anchored there eight days to give her crew shore leave.

Insanity Plea Stays Execution of Birger

Benton, Ill., April 12 (A.P.).—An eleventh-hour plea of insanity here tonight resulted in a stay of execution for Charles Birger, southern Illinois gang leader, who was to hang at 10 a. m. tomorrow for the murder of Mayor Joe Adams, of West City. The stay was ordered by Circuit Court Judge Charles E. Miller, who presided at the trial at which Birger was condemned to death.

A hearing on an insanity petition presented tonight will be held before Judge Miller Monday, April 16, when Birger's attorneys will argue that he is insane and unable to comprehend that he is under a death sentence.

MINE BLAST KILLS 3; 80 OTHERS ESCAPE

Rescuers Find Victims' Bodies in One Room in Pit at Boomer, W. Va.

Boomer, W. Va., April 12 (A.P.).—Three men were killed in an explosion in the mine of the Boomer Coal and Coke Co. here today. Eighty miners escaped. The blast was termed "a small local one" by R. H. Lambie, chief of the State mining department.

The bodies of the three victims were found in one room of the mine after rescue workers had labored for hours to reach them. Those killed were William Meleneric, engineer of the company; Rose Withrow, his assistant, and D. M. Hall, assistant mine foreman.

The explosion was the second in southern West Virginia mines in April termed "the danger period" in mines because of the changing season. Earlier in the month eight miners met death in a blast in the Keystone mine at Key-stone, McDowell County.

Three, Ill of Measles, Slain; Man Ends Life

Chireno, Tex., April 12 (A.P.).—Three children, ill in bed with the measles, were shot and killed here today by their father, G. A. Stubbelfield, who then committed suicide. The mother was out of the house at the time.

Stubbelfield had been in ill health and unable to work for several years. The children were from 5 to 12 years old.

The Chamberlain-Vanderbilt Hotel, Old Point Comfort, Va. All-year tourist hotel now open. Golf, tennis, swimming, yachting, fishing, croquet, riding—Adm.

Infernal Machine in Milan Lamp-Post Does Havoc Over Wide Area.

RULER VISITS WOUNDED

Milan, April 12 (A.P.).—Terrorists placed a powerful bomb in the base of one of the electric light lamp posts lining the Piazza Giulio Cesare, and it exploded with terrific force this morning, killing at least 15 persons and injuring 40 or more, about the time King Victor Emmanuel was due to pass the spot. Thousands had gathered to salute the king on his way to the fair grounds to inaugurate an exposition. The explosion tore the lamp post to pieces and sent huge chunks of iron in all directions.

The king, who had arrived at Milan half an hour before, was somewhat delayed in proceeding to the fair grounds. The enthusiastic populace crowded the streets and the squares. It was due to the slowness of the royal procession that the king escaped being in the very midst of the disaster. Word of the explosion was kept from the king until he entered the fair grounds, a few minutes after 10 o'clock.

The base of the lamp post where the bomb had been placed had a circumference of about 7 or 8 feet. Therefore the explosive power of the bomb was increased manifold. When it burst fragments of metal were scattered over a radius of an eighth of a mile. A huge hole was ripped in the pavement for a distance of 100 or more feet, and great crevices were opened in the square.

A woman looking out of a window of a house nearby was struck by a flying metal splinter and killed instantly. A little girl, who was known to have been clinging to the lamp post near the top, to see the procession, was blown to pieces. All that could be found of her was a little white hand.

U. S. Naval Officer's Bride Becomes American Citizen

Mrs. Olch, Once Subject of Czar, Takes Allegiance Oath at Annapolis—Met Ensign, Now Lieutenant, in Near East—Shared in Royal Fetters.

Special to The Washington Post.
Annapolis, Md., April 12.—Changing her status from a "woman without a country" to that of a United States citizen Mrs. Ileana Olch, former subject of the Russian Imperial government, today in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court took the oath of allegiance before Judge Robert Moss. She is the wife of Junior Lieut. Isiah Olch, of Providence, R. I., now on duty at the Naval Academy. Mrs. Olch lived in Washington nearly a year.

Mrs. Olch formerly was a protégé of the League of Nations because she was a subject of a government which ceased to exist after the revolution of 1917. Before her marriage she was Ileana Shakhovskaya Shilenkoff and lived in Petrograd, where she was graduated from the Institute for the Daughters of the Nobility. Her father, now dead, was

ADVISORY COUNCIL

APPROVES MERGER BY 6-TO-2 BALLOT

Congress Asked to Pass Companies' Proposal as Modified.

ACTION SURPRISES; FOUGHT BY ROBERTS

Valuation of $50,000,000 Is Called None Too High in Resolution Adopted.

The Yaden-Stengle-Lodge faction of the new Citizens Advisory Council, within an hour after organizing that body last night launched a bitter fight in behalf of the street car companies' merger proposal as modified by the Public Utilities Commission. Debate on the issue that was argued for ten days before the commission was limited to an hour, in which time W. A. Roberts made an eloquent appeal to the council to defer action but was unable to state the objections to the plan of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Association, of which he is vice chairman, and a resolution approving the plan was adopted by a vote of 6 to 2.

Those voting in favor of the companies-commission merger plan were George E. Wales, Thomas E. Lodge, Charles I. Stengle, Dr. George H. Robertson, William H. Lewis, and Joseph L. Gammell. Those voting against it were Roberts and F. Tracy Campbell. Yaden did not vote, saying that the chairman voted only in case of a tie.

The resolution in a set of "whereases" states that the agreed valuation of $50,000,000 is not too high and in its "resolve" approves the merger proposed by the Public Utilities Commission and the people's counsel, in principle, and urges Congress to approve the plan "as proposed" by the commission and the people's counsel. (This time omitting the words "in principle," speedily and with any modifications that may be found advisable.)

Roberts Makes Protest.

Appearance of the merger proposal in the council came as a surprise. The fight upon which Roberts was elected to the council against united opposition was forced upon him without time for preparation. He expressed indignation thereat and said that he felt it was done at the first council meeting largely to forestall action by the federation tomorrow night at which time a repetition of former merger battles is expected. He announced his intention of filing a minority report.

Wales offered the resolution. As he offered it the words "in principle" did not modify the endorsement he proposed that the council vote. The motion is undebatable. The roll was called and Gammell and Campbell voted with Roberts to lay Wales' resolution on the table. Then Stengle moved to restrict debate to 45 minutes.

Mrs. Coolidge Starts Back to Washington

Northampton, Mass., April 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the President, left here for Washington at 7:25 o'clock tonight, ending the third visit she has made here since last January to see her aged mother, Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, who is ill at the Dickinson Hospital.

A statement issued by Lieut. Comdr. Joel T. Boone, of the White House medical staff, said that Mrs. Goodhue's condition was such as to warrant Mrs. Coolidge's return to Washington for the present.

FARM RELIEF BILL

PASSED IN SENATE BY 53-TO-23 VOTE

Equalization Fee Is Kept in Measure, 46 to 31; 9 Senators Shift.

ONLY FIVE SUPPORT BROOKHART SUBSIDY

Two-Thirds Vote to Override Veto Doubt in Full Poll of Membership.

(Associated Press.)

The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, carrying features which caused President Coolidge to veto it a year ago, was passed last night by the Senate and sent to the House, which also is expected to approve it at an early date.

The vote was 53 to 23, as compared to the 47-to-36 vote at the last session. While this is more than the two-thirds majority which would be required to override a veto it was regarded as doubtful that with the full membership present a two-thirds majority could be obtained.

President Coolidge has left no doubt in the minds of congressional leaders that the bill still carries features objectionable to him, principally the equalization fee by which it is proposed to raise funds to take care of the surplus crops so as to maintain prices of farm products at a higher level.

Show-Down Vote on Fee.

A direct show-down of Senate sentiment on the equalization fee was provided by an amendment by Senator Sackett (Republican), Kentucky, proposing elimination of that provision of the bill. The proposal was rejected, 46 to 31, after two hours of vigorous debate during which Senator McNary (Republican), Oregon, in charge of the bill, made an eloquent plea for enactment of the bill in the form of the representatives of farmers' organizations had requested.

Before coming to the final vote on the bill itself, the Senate rejected, 54 to 3, a substitute by Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, which would have provided for a direct Government subsidy up to $600,000,000 to meet losses incurred by farmers in marketing their surplus crops.

The five supporting this measure were Blaine, Borah and Brookhart, (Republicans), and Bayard and Bleasie (Democrats). This vote came while a number of senators were absent from the chamber and as they came straggling in several voted for the Brookhart proposal only to change their votes later after they discovered their error. This caused laughter in the chamber and gallery and led Senator Borah to arise and announce that he did not change his vote.

Line-up of Candidates.

Since congressional action on the McNary-Haugen bill admittedly is playing its part in the pre-convention presidential campaign, the chief point of interest to political observers was how the presidential candidates would vote on the bill. The Republican candidates split three and two: Curtis, of Kansas; Watson, of Indiana; and Norris, of Nebraska, voting for the bill; and Borah, of Idaho, and Goff, of West Virginia, voting against it. That was the way they lined up a year ago.

Senator Fess, of Ohio, who is to sound the keynote at the Kansas City convention, and who has been prominent in the movement to draft Coolidge, voted

GAS TURBINE AUTO HAILED AS SPEEDIEST

Car, Leaving Flaming Trail, Reaches 62-Mile Gait in Eight Seconds.

Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, April 12 (A.P.).—A motor car equipped with a gas turbine operating on the principle of a rocket, was tried out on an automobile track near Russelsheim today. After the test, which developed a speed of 62 miles an hour in eight seconds from the start, the Frankfort Opel Motor Co. claimed that the car will easily break all automobile speed records.

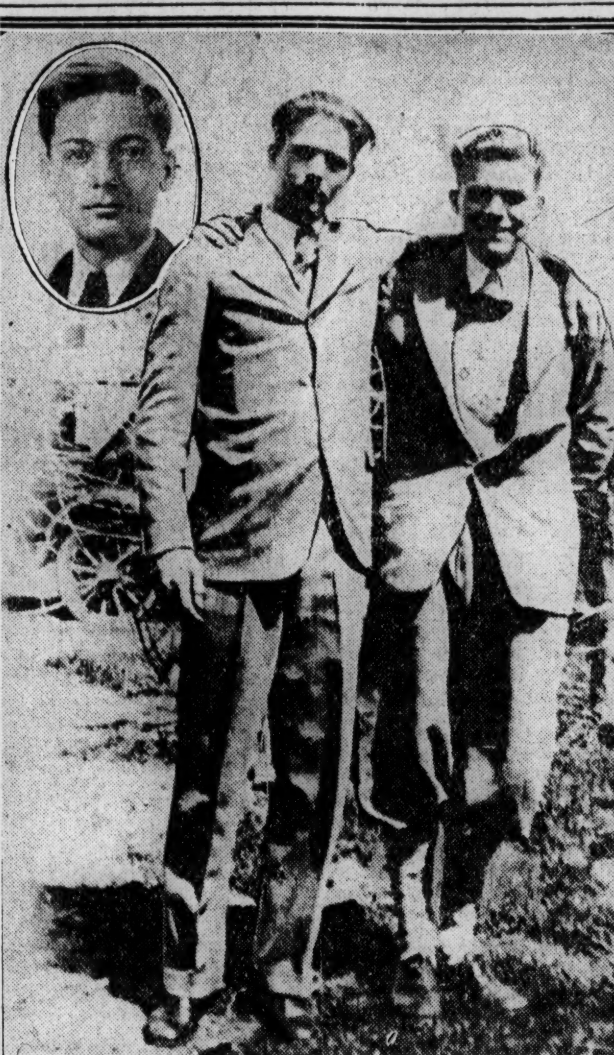

The machine was constructed on the plan evolved by Max Valier, who is known as the "fantastic cosmos flyer," from his idea of shooting a rocket into space. The gases generated from combustion of fuel oil, formed a fiery, comet-like tail as the machine swept by.

An attempt is to be made to build a railway car that will beat speed records. Ultimately the motor company plans a "cosmos airship" intended to reach hitherto unattainable altitudes.

Glenn Curtiss Hurt When Autos Collide

Auburn, N. Y., April 12 (A.P.).—Glenn H. Curtiss, pioneer airplane builder, and Victor Vernon, of Syracuse, one of the country's first pilots, were injured today when their automobile, parked near a field outside this city, was hit by the automobile of Michael Pasco, of Auburn. Both suffered severe shock. Each has down thousands of miles without mishap.

FIGURES IN LITTLE FALLS TRAGEDY

Youths who figured in the tragedy, which yesterday, resulted in the drowning of John W. Lang (inset). Lang's companion, in trying to "shoot the rapids" of the Potomac, was rescued from the water by J. D. Stehman, left, and McLean Smith, of Cherrylee.

GOV. AL SMITH MOBBED BY FRIENDS AT STATION

Brown Derby Knocked Off in Exuberance of Welcome, Despite Police Guard.

GETS "LOST" IN YARDS

Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, on a vacation from the politics of a presidential campaign in which he is one of the leading figures, stopped off in Washington last night for a few moments en route to Asheville, N. C., for a week of golf. He was nearly mobbed by scores of Washington supporters, who thronged around the special car which is bearing him south. The brown derby was knocked askew and it required the wholehearted efforts of a dozen terminal police and the governor's personal bodyguard to protect him.

But both the crowd and the governor were good natured, and the presidential candidate removed a huge cigar from his mouth while he shook hands with more than 100 members of the local "Smith for President Club" who gathered at the station to meet him. He stood around and chatted with newspaper men and posed for photographers for about twenty minutes while a beaming porter on the train insistently called "All aboard." The call apparently meant little to the governor, who didn't hesitate to keep the train waiting.

The governor may intend to leave politics behind on his vacation, but politics will not leave him alone. More than twenty newspaper correspondents are aboard the train carrying him south, and it is expected that several score more will join the party when it reaches Asheville.

Governor Smith is accompanied by William H. Todd, New York shipbuilder; James J. Riordan and William F. Kenny, three of his golfing cronies. As the train carrying the party pulled out of here last night it was boarded by Senator Peter Goellet Gerry, of Rhode Island, who joined the party.

In addition to the group of local Democrats who greeted the governor.

BOY WHIRLED TO DEATH SHOOTING LITTLE FALLS

John W. Lang, 16, Western High School Boy, Dies When Canoe Capsizes.

ROBERT M. EMERY SAVED

One boy was battered to death upon the rocks of Little Falls, in the Potomac River, yesterday afternoon, and his companion narrowly escaped a similar fate when canoes in which they attempted to "shoot the rapids" in Indian fashion capsized and hurled the occupants into the turbulent spring freshet. A thrilling rescue of Robert Emery, 16 years old, of Fort Hunt, Va., was enacted a mile below the scene.

The drowned lad was John W. Lang, Jr., 16 years old, a student and sergeant of cadets at Western High School. An excellent swimmer, he is believed to have been swirled against the jagged rocks and beaten unconscious before drowning Emery, clinging to the wreckage of his battered craft, was saved by J. D. Stehman, 16, and McLean Smith, 15 years old, Boy Scouts, of Cherrylee, Va., who saw the boy whirling past their camp in the swift current and put out to rescue him.

Henry Ford Has Tea With King and Queen

London, April 12 (A.P.).—Henry Ford met King George and Queen Mary this afternoon at Cliveden, the country home of Lady Astor, says the London Daily Mail. Their majesties arrived for an afternoon call and Mr. Ford came as a week-end guest. The king and queen, Mr. Ford and Lady Astor had tea together and talked for nearly two hours.

Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, who were married at Cliveden today, were also presented to the king and queen.

4 Drowned as Auto Falls Into Mill Race

Wilmington, Del., April 12 (A.P.).—Two young men and two young women were drowned when their automobile plunged into a mill race that parallels the Brandywine River here. The accident was discovered today when a man saw a small coupe lying on its side in the water. The men were identified as Ernest Scott, Wilmington, and Bernard Jackson, Newark, Del.

It was believed that the car plunged into the mill race during a snowstorm a few hours earlier.

Norman Trevor, Actor, To Go to Sanitarium

Los Angeles, April 12 (A.P.).—Norman Trevor, English stage and screen actor, after a hearing before the lunacy commission here today was paroled to his friends, who announce they will place him in a private sanitarium. He was taken into custody last week after H. B. Warner, his life-long friend and fellow film star, filed a complaint alleging Trevor was of unsound mind.

GERMAN PLANE DUE AT NEWFOUNDLAND; WEATHER CLEARING

Fliers Neither Seen Nor Heard Since Leaving Irish Coast.

FAITH IN THE MOTOR BUOYS THEIR FRIENDS

Dublin Calculates Machine Can Reach New York Early This Afternoon.

(Associated Press.)

Fair weather was forecast for early today at the western end of the long route the German monoplane Bremen, bound for "Mitchel Field or Heaven," traveled if all went well with the big ship during the night.

Rain squalls and low-hanging clouds off Newfoundland gave way late last night to clear skies. A fog off Halifax had lifted and the plane after bucking adverse winds on the last lap of her flight from Ireland, should pass Newfoundland in fairly favorable weather.

Officials at Baldonnel Field, where the Bremen took off at 5:38 a. m. Irish time, on Thursday, figured that the ship should sight Newfoundland by 12:30 a. m. Eastern standard time, today, barring mishap.

Faith in Single Motor.

The three-man crew of the Bremen—Capt. Hermann Koehl, German ace; Col. James Fitzmaurice, Ireland's air hero, and Baron Gunther von Huenefeld, backer of the flight—placed their faith in the ship's single powerful motor, and their friends ashore were equally confident that it would carry the plane safely across the Atlantic.

James H. Kimball, of the United States Weather Bureau, said there had been no developments during the night to alter his earlier forecast that the plane would strike considerable wind resistance on the last few hundred miles of the trip. Off St. Johns, Newfoundland, he said, there was good visibility last night, but indications were that rain would come before morning.

A southeast wind had veered to the southwest, and out over the Grand Banks northwest winds prevailed and the temperature hovered around freezing.

A close watch was to be kept at St. Johns for the plane but there was little belief that it would be sighted as it passed along toward New York.

Elaborate Welcome Plans.

Elaborate plans were made in New York to receive the airmen, Baron Ehrenfried Gunther von Huenefeld, the sponsor and passenger-handyman, Capt. Hermann Koehl and Col. James Fitzmaurice, the pilots. Since the plane was not expected until noon or later today, the landing lights at Mitchel Field were not burned during the night.

The flying field is to be policed today by large details of soldiers and police, and delegations from New York fliers' organizations, and German and Irish societies made plans for a royal welcome. Mayor Walker appointed Governor Whalen, head of the mayor's committee for the reception of distinguished guests, to receive the fliers in the name of New York City.

The Federal Government took cognizance of the flight, Secretary of War Davis instructing the Army corps commanders at New York, Boston and Philadelphia to prepare to offer every possible assistance and courtesy to the foreign fliers wherever they might land.

No Word Early Today.

New York (Friday), April 13 (A.P.).—A chill pall of silence enveloped the fate of the Bremen plane and her crew of three at the beginning of the second day since she took off from Baldonnel Field, Ireland.

"No report from any source," was the only reply available for anxious inquirers from shortly after 2 o'clock, Eastern standard time, yesterday morning, when the silver-hued ship flickered for a moment in the view of Irish civic guards at Slyne Head, most westerly point of Connacht.

None of the 24 ships plowing the north Atlantic routes had reported sighting the Bremen, although radio stations up and down the coast were on the alert throughout yesterday and last night.

See Lights in Early Hours.

Baldonnel, Irish Free State, April 12 (A.P.).—The Junker monoplane Bremen, which hopped off from this field at 5:38 a. m. today for New York, was supposedly 1,400 miles west of Ireland and only 500 miles off Newfoundland at 10:30 p. m. tonight.

This was according to a special calculation made for the Associated Press by the Baldonnel air authorities. They figured that Capt. Hermann Koehl, German ace, and Col. James Fitzmaurice, Irish aviator, copilots of the Bremen, should see the lights of

KLAN'S BROTHERS TESTIFY IN PARADE UNARMED

Deny Weapons Were Carried at Time of Fatal Riot at Carnegie.

WITHDRAWAL ORDERED
"TO STOP BLOODSHED"

Suit Against Former Members
Still Under Way in U. S.
Court at Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, April 12 (A.P.).—Many witnesses took the stand in Federal Court here today and denied that members of the Ku Klux Klan were armed or stirred up trouble with citizens of Carnegie, Pa., on the night of a riot there in 1923, when one klanman was killed.

The witnesses were called by the Klan after five former members testified in the case. The suit of the "banished" klanmen, who sought to have a receiver appointed in Pennsylvania and an accounting of $15,000,000 collected in the State, was dismissed yesterday by Judge W. H. Thompson for lack of jurisdiction. The Klan wants the court to enjoin the former klanmen from using the name and award total damages of $500,000, claiming they collected that amount without authorization.

Ray Bowser, of New Kensington, testified people lined along the route of the parade klanmen sneered at them. John H. Cunningham, of Washington, D. C., chief counsel for the Klan, asked Bowser as well as other witnesses whether the klanmen carried any guns, clubs or other implements of carnage, and the reply always was "No."

Withdrawal Was Ordered.

John Ogle, New Kensington, Pa., testified after klanmen and citizens clashed at a bridge leading into Carnegie, Sam D. Hinch, klanman from Pennsylvania, ordered them to return to a nearby field "to avoid any further bloodshed."

Ogle said three or four guards, carrying revolvers in holsters, were stationed about the field where the order held a demonstration before marching into Carnegie.

Connaughton sought to develop from W. H. Mitchell, exalted cyclops of Swatara, Pa., that the Klan is a State Klan organization, that members of the order were instructed not to go to Carnegie without a permit, and the court sustained an objection by Van A. Barickman, a defendant and counsel for the former members.

David Slaughter, of Wilkesburg, Pa., and Imperiel Wizard Hiram W. Evans attended the Carnegie demonstration. Responding to a question, he said he was far back on the line to hear Evans' speech.

Bottles and Bricks Hurlled.

Another witness said citizens hurled bottles, clubs, coal and bricks into the ranks of the klanmen. The klanmen, it was brought out, were instructed not to speak to any persons outside of those in the parade.

Denial that klanmen fired a cross and touched off a bomb on the lawn of St. Mary's Catholic Church, Kittanning, Pa., as testified by a witness for the former klanmen, was made by Rev. W. W. W. Hinch, of Kittanning, Pa., a klan lecturer in Pennsylvania.

"There was no incident during a demonstration at Kittanning," he said.

Cross-examined by Barickman, Mr. Hinch said a cross was burned and a bomb set off at a field part of initiation services at the meeting.

Before their plaintiffs began their rebuttal testimony some portions of the deposition of Daniel C. Jones, a white time Indiana klan leader and now serving life for murder, were admitted and others stricken out by Judge Thompson.

No Retaliation, He Says.

Sam McDonald, of Wilkesburg, Pa., said the klanmen did not attack any citizen at Carnegie before the riot and that when one threw a brick into their ranks the klanmen did not retaliate. He said the klanmen on parade were unarmed.

H. O. Howard, Pittsburgh, testified Imperial Wizard Evans tried to stop the parade, but that the klanmen disregarded his order and started the march. He said that a riot at a hotel at Scottsdale, Pa., some men secreted in a corridor, opened fire on the klanmen with pistols.

Cross-examination, Attorney Barickman asked Howard if he had made a threat against Barickman in court yesterday. Howard denied this. As the witness left the stand he mumbled something to the attorney, and Barickman asked if he had threatened Judge Thompson.

The young woman said the captain of the Concord furnished them with funds for transportation back to New Orleans, despite their desire to continue to Philadelphia.

Girls Aboard Four Ships.

Reports to the Navy Department here were in conflict with those from Key West in regard to the stayaways. It was at first said here that there were only four girls found and that they were aboard four ships, the Billingsley, the Concord, the destroyer Sander and the destroyer repair ship Dobbin, of the scouting force of the fleet. No mention was made of the fifth girl.

It is presumed that if the statement of the Navy Department is correct that the girls were found on different ships, they were transported at sea to the Concord in order to avoid the necessity of bringing all the girls to port.

Naval courts of inquiry have been ordered to make immediate investigation of the presence of the girls aboard the craft. It was said at the department.

Justice Gordon Grants Divorce.

Justice Peyton Gordon of Equity Court No. 2 signed his first divorce decree yesterday when he awarded an interlocutory decree for absolute divorce to Charles W. Rucker, 2118 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, against Mrs. Mary L. Rucker. The Ruckers were married October 18, 1921. Attorneys William R. Ives and Robert E. Lambert appeared for Rucker.

GERMAN AND IRISH FLIERS DUE OFF AMERICAN COAST TODAY

Newfoundland at 5:30 a. m., Irish time, or 12:30 a. m., Eastern standard time, and pictured these two in the cockpit giving the news to Baron Gunther Von Huensfeld, promoter of the flight, who sits behind them in the cabin pumping oil for the motor.

They said that if all goes well the fliers should reach Mitchell Field on Long Island at 6:30 p. m., New York time, tomorrow. This, however, allows four hours for errors in navigation, so the Bremen may land any time between 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

The calculations were based on an average speed of 95 miles an hour. The weather charts indicated that through the day the plane had to buck a tempest wind, but at the part of the Atlantic where they were supposed to be this evening the wind was 20 to 25 miles an hour on the surface and from 35 to 40 miles an hour at a height of 2,000 feet. Hence seven hours were allowed for 500 miles.

Change in Wind to Help.

Conditions were reported as improving toward Newfoundland, however, with the wind changing to the northeast. This would be most favorable to the flyers, as it would drive them toward New York of increased speed.

Summing up, the Irish authorities said the entire success of the effort would depend on the engine and that they were highly optimistic.

Following the Great Circle.

The airplane is following the North Atlantic, or great circle, route. "It is only 2,050 miles to St. Johns that way," Fitzmaurice gaily told the Associated Press correspondent before he started toward New York of increased speed.

Just how near the Bremen was to disaster during the first mad rush to lift its five tons of deadweight into the air when the Bremen was held exclusively by the Irish authorities, only the Irish authorities could tell.

Gasps of horror, changing quickly into cries of joyful relief, burst from the few score of spectators far out on the runway when the Bremen, with her 600 gallons of explosive fuel, seemingly refused to take the air at the pilot's first attempt and careened on down what would have been a certain crash if the plane had not slowly lifted, steadied and skimmed under the fresh green foothills of the Dublin mountains and disappeared into the west.

Most Perilous Mile Past.

The most perilous mile of all those 3,000 and odd between here and New York was safely past, and the name "Columbia" was heard in the air.

On the lips of all who realized the great hazards and danger in the Bremen's take-off.

Then cheers echoed and the engine roared as the wings took up upward stand like crosses on its summit. The gap in the wall with the narrowest margin of safety was past.

Directly in the front was the hill known to Baldonnel fliers as "Calvary," because of the three masts of the River Shannon power scheme, which stands like crosses on its summit. The Bremen averted to the right and skirted the hill before again turning westward.

HOSPITAL INQUIRY
PLANNED BY LEGION

Deaths at Emergency of Two Veterans to Be Subject of Investigation.

The executive committee of the District of Columbia department of the American Legion will investigate the deaths of two veterans who died recently, following statements made last night at a special convention of the District department held at the Auditorium of the Interior Department.

A resolution adopted at the meeting called on the national convention of the American Legion to secure the passage of legislation to abolish the United States Bureau of Efficiency, the United States Civil Service Commission and the executive departments of the Government to adhere strictly to the provisions of the act of July 11, 1919, providing for the compensation of veterans.

Another resolution adopted called on President Coolidge to issue an executive order calling on the Civil Service Commission and the executive departments of the Government to adhere strictly to the provisions of the act of July 11, 1919, providing for the compensation of veterans.

The lawless element has been in control of their section of the county for three years, the citizens said, "almost without interruption or interference."

against the bill. None of the Democratic presidential candidates was present, but it was announced that Senator Walsh, of Montana, would have voted against it. Senator Reed, of Missouri, who opposed the bill last session, was absent on a speaking tour and there was no announcement as to how he would have voted.

Those who shifted position since the vote a year ago were nine in number: George H. Harrison and Stephens, of Michigan; Sackett, of Kentucky (Republicans); George and Henry B. Sackett, of Georgia (Republicans); Mississippi; Heflin, of Alabama, and Overman, of North Carolina (Democrats). Senator Gould (Republican), Maine, was the only one for the bill last year who turned against it. He was absent, but paired.

Roll Call on Measure.

The roll call follows: Republicans—Bingham, Borah, Dale, Fess, Giff, Greene, Hale, Keyes, Metcalf, Moses, Phillips, Reed, of Pennsylvania; Shortridge and Warren—14.

Democrats—Bayard, Blaine, Bruce, Edwards, Gerry, Glass, Swanson, Tydings and Walsh, of Massachusetts—9.

MISS KNAPP BESIEGED BY SUBPENA SERVERS

Former Official's Stepdaughter
Wanted for Questioning
by Grand Jury.

DORMITORY HER REFUGE

Albany, N. Y., April 12 (A.P.).—Activities of the special grand jury investigating Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp's conduct of the 1925 State census were overshadowed today by a virtual siege in progress at Middlebury, Vt., in an effort to subpoena Clara Blanche Knapp, stepdaughter of the former secretary of state, who is wanted for questioning.

Miss Knapp, who is a faculty member at Middlebury College, during 1925 and 1926 was listed on the census pay roll, although her testimony and census records showed that she apparently had done no work on the enumeration.

Some testimony offered before the grand jury tended to show that she had no leave of absence from the institution during the period of the census, although checks totaling $5,351.85 were issued to her.

Since Tuesday morning Miss Knapp has been confined to her room in a dormitory at the college, while for the greater part of the time the sheriff of Addison County and two deputies have patrolled the grounds outside the building waiting for the opportunity to appear in Albany either today or next Monday. Reports from investigators of the New York State department of law now in Middlebury, were that the officers had been refused entry to the top floor of the Knapp house, where Mrs. Knapp's room is located.

Supreme Court Justice Stephen Callaghan, presiding at the Knapp case, said he had been held prisoner for several days of the summons in Vermont. Eight indictments against Mrs. Knapp have been set for trial April 30.

COPPER FOUND CURATIVE
FOR CASES OF ANEMIA

Rats, Suffering From Disease
Similar to That in Children, Recover.

LIVER ALSO IS EFFECTIVE

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 12 (A.P.).—Copper, as an aid in the correction of anemia, has been discovered in the University of Wisconsin laboratories. Dr. E. B. Hart, chief of the division of agricultural chemistry of that institution, reported today at the meeting of the American Society of Biological Chemists.

By supplementing copper compounds with iron in a whole milk diet, anemia in white rats, a disease similar to anemia in children when fed exclusively on milk, has been successfully corrected, Dr. Hart announced.

The discovery is the result of a long series of experiments at the Wisconsin institution, in which Dr. Hart and his colleagues traced the iron content of milk and its effect upon anemia. It explains the inability of investigators to remedy anemia with pure iron and their success with iron and copper.

Dr. Hart said that rats suffering from anemia, due to an exclusive milk diet, were not improved when iron was added to the milk. Addition of copper compounds, however, produced striking cures. Liver extracts for treating anemia in man, prepared under the supervision of a committee from Harvard University, and the copper content of milk. This was attributed partly to the copper content in the extract.

Although the correction of anemia in rats may differ from the curing of the disease in man, Dr. Hart believes it may be helpful in curing all types of the disease.

Hart was assisted by Drs. H. Steenbock and A. E. Brown and J. Paul, chemist in the College of Agriculture.

2 MINNESOTA TOWNS
TELL OF TERRORISM

Women and Children in Fear of Lives, Say Citizens, Asking Protection.

Duluth, Minn., April 12 (A.P.).—Armed with a statement that their community has been terrorized "to the point where women and children are afraid to go to school or to their own homes," a committee of citizens from Orr and Cuscon, North Woods townships, in the Empire State, today asked the governor for protection from the lawless element.

The committee members told of a mass meeting held Tuesday night at which they were appointed and produced a statement signed by 115 citizens of the two small towns. They said copies of the document had been sent to Sheriff Magie and County Attorney Forbes here.

The lawless element has been in control of their section of the county for three years, the citizens said, "almost without interruption or interference."

Charles W. Darr, president of the club, P. A. Sugrue, Mrs. Lester J. Pollock and Judge Albert Dulin in attendance last night. The committee was charged with laxity in not revising the boundaries of the District political map years ago. Mr. Costello was termed a "hold-over" by Sugrue, who declared that since there had been no election since 1912 there was no local committee nor a local central committee.

A statement, authorized by the officers of the club, announcing the meeting, declared "the national committee and members of the central committee are elected every four years. As no regular primary has been held since 1912, any one who claims title is simply a hold-over. The delegation to the last convention was not elected, but was hand-picked. At this time we are unable to learn who the members of the central committee are, and believe they will also have to be hand-picked by the national committee."

The speakers last night asserted that in the event Mr. Costello did not call a primary next month, the club would conduct a primary and send a delegation to the Houston convention. The club was given the right of a delegation to Gov. Smith.

Mr. Darr declared that the club now has a membership of more than 2,000. He said that a demand would be made of Clem Shaver, Democratic national committee chairman, to see that a fair primary is held in the District.

Provides in Farm Board.

The measure also would set up a farm board, appointed by the President, with the consent of the Senate, to administer the act. Advisory councils, to be named by farm organizations, would be established for each commodity and their approval would be necessary for the application of the principle of the equalization fee.

Fresh fruits and vegetables and beef and pork products are the only commodities excluded from the provisions of the bill.

Chairman McNary of the agriculture committee, co-author of the bill, contended that the measure met all of the objections of President Coolidge to the farm legislation passed at the last session and vetoed by him with the exception of the equalization fee. This principle has been declared unconstitutional by Attorney General Sargent.

As an argument for executive approval, the Oregon senator said that there would be plenty of time for the courts to pass on the constitutionality of the equalization fee provision before it could come into operation.

Will Rogers Does Amateur Praying For Ocean Fliers

Special to The Washington Post.

Rochester, N. Y., April 12.—As I wire this from Rochester we haven't heard anything from the German and Irish fliers yet, but I am leaving here after my sermon tonight and will be in New York standing with Casey Jones on Mitchell field all day tomorrow.

I don't know, but I just believe they are going to make it. I met this Irishman over in Ireland and I can't picture him anything but alive.

Politics can wait. This is important business we got to think of today. I am going to be a-looking-a-hoping and doing a little amateur praying.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

1,000 SUSPECTED REDS HELD IN DRIVE BY JAPAN

Authorities Seize Students;
More Arrests Expected;
Many Are Watched.

RUSSIAN FUNDS BLAMED

Tokyo, April 12 (A.P.).—Continuing their drive against communism, the authorities today arrested more suspects, including several students. Further arrests are expected.

With more than a thousand alleged reds arrested in Japan during the past month, the government is believed to have the situation well in hand. No difficulties are expected at present, although the police are watching all suspects closely.

About 400 or 500 of those under arrest will be charged with violating the peace. Few convictions are expected, however, because the government acted largely on suspicion. The evidence was found in the case of the students during the recent general election by the proletarian left. This was considered chiefly less majestic because the overthrow of the monarchy and the setting up of a workers' government was advocated.

The circulars stated: "Parliament is nothing more than an organ to cheat the people. We must, therefore, form our own parliament of laborers and peasants. The proletarian left is the only force capable of overthrowing the capitalist and landowner."

Our demands are: "Wholesale revision of the laws aimed at the oppression of proletarians, opposition to war of imperialism, abolition of the monarchy."

In the election two radical members of the proletarian party obtained seats in the diet. It is understood that the government is planning to use them in the coming session.

In the meantime, the government's banding of the left wing of the labor party in the Diet is being considered a disturbing and the malcontents announce that they intend to reorganize.

It is generally considered that money was supplied the Japanese Communists from Russia, but there is no proof of this. The Soviet embassy denies it absolutely.

BOY GOES TO DEATH

Two days after the two returned to the camp site for the purpose of bringing the boats in and after looking at the falls from a distance decided to attempt to take the boats over the falls. They calculated on the speed of the river current to hurry them home.

When his craft suddenly lurched over the falls he was too busy fighting for his life to see what had happened to Lang. The boy was seen from the bridge, however, as he struggled to maintain a grasp on the fragile boat after a brief struggle, young Lang apparently lapsed into unconsciousness and sank from sight.

Lang's canoe and the Emery boy clinging to his own boat were taken ashore by the two campers and a mile below the bridge, out of view of the crowd on the bridge, who thought that Emery, too, had been drowned.

Lang was born at West Point, N. Y., and was being prepared for a military career. He won second prize in a swimming contest at Port Leavenworth, Kans., last year. His father, Maj. John W. Lang, is attached to the General Staff of the Army in this city.

Harbor police were unable to reach the base of the falls in the police boat, and efforts to recover the body were made by grappling from rocks near the shore where Lang's body sank. It is thought that the body may have been swept far downstream.

The river at this season of the year is extremely dangerous at any point above the islands known as the Three Sisters, due to the feeding of flood waters into the stream from tributaries. The portion of the river where the boys braved the falls is un navigable at all seasons.

PEN WOMEN REFUSE TO ALLY FOREIGN RESIDENTS TO JOIN

Resolution Adopted Confines
Membership to Native-
Born or Citizens.

COMMITTEE DISCUSSES PLANS FOR MEMORIAL

Proposal Favored, but No Definite Action Taken;
Many Reports Read.

An attempt to amend the by-laws of the organization to admit foreign resident women as associate members was defeated by the determined opposition of a large group of the League of American Pen Women at the business session of the second day of their biennial convention now in session at the Willard Hotel. The amendment was bitterly opposed and finally was lost when it failed of adoption on a two-thirds majority. The vote was tallied at 71 for the amendment and 57 opposed.

Battle lines have been forming since the first delegates arrived for the convention, which opened Wednesday and will end Saturday night. The proposed amendment has been the subject of much talk and its defeat was not a total surprise.

Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton, national president, was unable to stem the tide of arguments for and against the amendment and the parliamentarian, E. Jean Nelson Penfield, was called upon several times to expound the law. The rule provided that no delegate could speak for more than two minutes, and could not speak more than twice on a motion.

Members Status Defined.

An amendment defining the status of women who can join the league as those of native birth or citizenship of the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, was introduced by Mrs. Seton and branch presidents reported at the session.

The national clubhouse committee met at a luncheon during the noon recess. The committee agreed that it would be a fine thing to erect a national clubhouse in Washington, and approved a suggestion that the clubhouse should be made a memorial to those women who had distinguished themselves as writers and artists in the United States.

Mrs. Harriet Halley Locher, chairman, presided. The committee took no definite steps, however, toward the inauguration of a plan to obtain a clubhouse.

MRS. WILLEBRANDT'S HOOVER STATEMENT STIRS UP DEMOCRATS

See in Indorsement Implication Administration Is Not Enforcing Dry Law.

WANT TO KNOW WHO HALTS PROSECUTION

Prohibition Head, May Be Called Before Senate Committee to Explain.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.
Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, Assistant to the Attorney General, may be called on the "carpet" to explain her statement indorsing Secretary of Commerce Hoover. The Democrats in Congress, with their party at present carrying the load of the wet and dry controversy, have seized upon it eagerly and plan to capitalize it to its full worth as an indication which, taken with the statement of other candidates, makes it not improbable that President Coolidge may have to take formal notice of it.

It was not Mrs. Willebrandt's announcement of support for the Secretary of Commerce that stirred up the ruckus. There is no law against that. In fact, it is quite the fact in what the anti-Hooverites are coming to call the administration hierarchy. It was the implication in the statement, it was pointed out, that President Coolidge is not now enforcing the prohibition law. In no quarter was it so seriously believed that Mrs. Willebrandt intended to convey such a criticism of her chief, at least not to the extent of having it so interpreted in Washington. The Democrats, however, Hooverites contend that it was a statement to the Women's Christian Temperance Union which purports to sit in judgment of candidates and parties and therefore needs explanation.

Likes Prohibition Stand.
The statement said: "Answering specifically your inquiry as to why I have indorsed him, I say unhesitatingly I am for Herbert Hoover because, in my opinion, he is the answer to those who said prohibition can not be enforced. If Mr. Hoover is the answer, it was pointed out, President Coolidge is not. There can not be two answers. The statement, it was contended, is tantamount to saying: "I admit that prohibition is not being enforced and as a result the country needs a president who can enforce it. If you elect Mr. Hoover he will enforce it."

The anti-Hooverites insist, and the Democrats gleefully agree with them, that it is a reflection on the present administration and an expression of belief that the country does expect no better from any other administration unless that of Hoover. It was interpreted as an admission of the failure of her own government, but a promise under certain circumstances to do better in the future.

Democrats Are Interested.
It was this latter phase which particularly interested the Democrats and which they are now endeavoring to get Mrs. Willebrandt to discuss. Why has there been a failure? She is the fountainhead of prohibition enforcement in the Department of Justice. Does she mean, it is asked, that she has been hamstrung and that she will be hamstrung in the future unless Secretary Hoover is given the reins of government? This is to suggest that the Department of Justice is not carrying out the law without fear or favor, regardless of who is President.

No one at the Capitol is worried about the state of affairs implied in Mrs. Willebrandt's statement, but the opportunity to make capital of such a frank statement is not permitted to pass by unnoticed. That prohibition enforcement is not effective is apparent to every one, including the Antislavery League, and there are few students of government who expect any change one way or the other regardless of who becomes the next President.

At Smith Stands Out.
The only worthwhile thought that has come out of the whole controversy, it was pointed out by one senator, that recently made by Gov. Smith of New York and that was that every community gets the degree of enforcement it wants.

This, it is believed will be the condition long after March 4, 1929, irrespective of who comes to the White House.

But it is not the politics of the situation, it is pointed out, that has worried thousands of men and women who choose between Lowden or Hoover and Gov. Smith or Senator Reed, or maybe it will be another lineup, the question of whether they are wet or dry. Inasmuch as the Republicans have jockeyed most of the burden to the Democrats, these Democrats want to develop Mrs. Willebrandt's thought.

The plan is to get her before a Senate committee and ask her just what she means. If she means that the Department of Justice can only be brought to effective functioning by electing Mr. Hoover President, the Democrats plan to let the country know that it does not realize what is going on, as it has been the administration's contention that the department was functioning all along.

May Urge Withdrawal.
If she does not mean this, then the friends of Lowden, Dawes, Curtis, Watson and Goff want her to withdraw her emphatic statement to the temperance women. It was a forceful statement calculated to have effect. There are drawbacks against the plan of getting Mrs. Willebrandt before a Senate committee, as she is a very forceful person and might perhaps tell of the handicaps prohibition enforcement encounters in certain communities, a narrative that might have its embarrassments for members of Congress.

Anyway, with such possibilities as her statement offers, coupled with the revolt in the staid National Republican Club in New York, the Democrats regard it as hopeful that they will not be alone with prohibition troubles.

CONGRESS TO ADJOURN
JUNE 8, SNELL HOLDS

House Rules Chairman Tells of Program to Speed the Pending Measures.

MEANS CONVENTION RUSH

Representative Snell (Republican) New York, chairman of the rules committee, said yesterday that he would be "satisfied" if the House adjourns its work by June 8. This is just four days before the Republican national convention opens in Kansas City. Leaders in the Senate have stated that they hoped that Congress might adjourn by May 19, but Snell evidently thinks this is out of the question. Should adjournment be delayed as late as June 8, it will mean a rush on the part of the Republican members to get their legislation passed.

In outlining the program of the House yesterday, Snell said that the House $225,000,000 flood relief bill will be taken up just as soon as the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, and then proceed with the Jones-White merchant marine bill and the Tyson-Fitzgerald emergency officers bill.

The food relief bill, Snell said, would be called up not later than Tuesday, and debate on it would be limited to twelve hours.

After that the House will take up the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, and then proceed with the Jones-White merchant marine bill and the Tyson-Fitzgerald emergency officers bill.

PROGRESSIVES GET 11
NEBRASKA DELEGATES

Administration to Have Six on the Present Returns From Primaries.

Omaha, Neb., April 12 (A.P.).—Progressive Republicans, aligned with United States Senator George W. Norris, will have eleven delegates at the Republican national convention, it was indicated tonight on the face of returns from 1,210 of the State's 1,983 precincts in Tuesday's primary election.

The same returns made it appear administration forces will be represented by six delegates, exclusive of the Second district, where the delegates were not pledged to either side.

Delegate candidate on Gov. Dan McMillen's ticket were leading for five of the seven delegate-at-large seats, former Gov. Samuel R. McKelvie and Charles H. Sloan, Geneva, advocates of the administration farm relief program were in the lead for the other two delegate places.

The McMillen forces, favoring the equalization feature of the McNary-Haugen bill, are pledged to support Senator Norris for President until it becomes apparent the Nebraska solon has no chance of nomination.

Then, in order, Frank O. Lowden, Vice President Charles G. Dawes and finally some middle Western men who hold kindred views on farm relief.

Although the McKelvie delegates are not pledged to support any individual for the presidency, it is generally believed they favor Herbert Hoover.

TRADE COMMISSION CONSIDERS UTILITY PUBLICITY SYSTEM

How Far 6 Bottles of Whisky Would Go With 25 Legislators Discussed.

ILLINOIS OPERATIONS DESCRIBED AT HEARING

5,000,000 Pamphlets Sent Out to Make Friends With Editors and Others.

(Associated Press.)
The Federal Trade Commission delved yesterday into the publicity methods of Illinois public utility power concerns, and considered for a moment how far six bottles of whisky would go among 25 legislators.

The whisky incident came at the close of the second day of the commission's renewed public hearings on the financial structure of the power industry, and went into the record in the form of a copy of a letter, admitted by Robert R. Prather, of Chicago, official of the National Electric Light Association.

It said that a "stormy session" of the Illinois legislature was in progress and that he could use a little "Walker to good advantage." It was addressed to H. M. Aylesworth, then manager of the National Electric Light Association. Prather asked that he "call on a friend of mine and bring me six bottles."

A Trade Commission investigator presented the copy as part of a memorandum, and Prather identified it as a copy of his letter, and said the original had been destroyed.

He denied vigorously, however, that he had given liquor to any members of the Illinois legislature, and declared the whisky was for his personal use.

Denies Making Any Gift.
"How far," he asked the commission, "do you think six bottles of whisky would go among 25 legislators? I never gave a legislator a bottle of whisky in my life."

Pamphlets describing proponents of government-controlled utilities as bolsheviks, "reds" and communists were introduced in connection with the testimony of Bernard J. Mulvaney, director, and Rob Roy McGregor, assistant director, of the Illinois committee on public utility information, who said that such literature had been distributed by their organization on behalf of the Illinois utilities companies.

It went to Illinois newspapers, clubs and high schools, Mulvaney said, adding that efforts were made to keep on friendly terms with editors and to correct erroneous information. He estimated that approximately 5,000,000 pamphlets had been circulated in this way.

Explains Committee's Purpose.
McGregor told the commission of a speech he had written at Mulvaney's suggestion which would attack any senatorial candidate favoring Government ownership of utilities. He acknowledged the authorship of a note to Mulvaney in which he said that if he should become a candidate himself he would attack his opponent as bolshevik, because logic and reason were worthless in a political campaign.

Mulvaney explained that the committee's public utility information was formed at a time when gas, electric and street railway companies faced an acute economic situation. The organization came about, he said, at the suggestion of Samuel Insull, Chicago utilities magnate, and it was thought that through publicity customers and investors could be informed of the problems of the utility companies.

No Second Choice

Boise, Idaho, April 12 (A.P.).—C. K. Macey, secretary of the Republican State central committee, today said published reports that Herbert Hoover had been named as second choice for the presidential nomination at the party's State convention at Pocatello, Tuesday, were unfounded. The delegation, with a voting power of 1k, was instructed only seek the nomination of Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, Mr. Macey said.

CHOICE OF SENATOR BY SMALL AWAITED EAGERLY IN ILLINOIS

Whether Governor Will Name Anyone to McKinley's Seat Is Discussed.

MANUFACTURERS URGE APPOINTMENT AT ONCE

Lead of Glenn Over Smith for the G. O. P. Nomination Is Increasing.

Chicago, April 12 (A.P.).—Whether Gov. Len Small would make an appointment to fill Illinois' seat in the United States Senate vacant since the death of Senator William B. McKinley, tonight became the most interesting subject of primary aftermath discussion.

Col. Frank L. Smith, of Dwight, twice refused a seat because of donations to his campaign fund by public utility men, was defeated along with the other leaders of the Small-Thompson-Crowe ticket. That left the way clear for a governor's appointee to go to Washington for the next seven months to give Illinois her full Senate quota.

It had been Col. Smith's fondest hope to go back to Washington with a second mandate from the voters obtained in a primary and election in which no action could be questioned. His first trip to Washington was by appointment of Gov. Small.

Appointment Is Urged.
The governor could not be reached tonight concerning the possible appointment of a successor to Col. Smith. The Illinois Manufacturers Association issued a statement urging Gov. Small to appoint a United States senator and asserted its board of directors would take formal action tomorrow upon the proposition.

Meanwhile the lead of Otis F. Glenn, of Murphysboro over Smith soared to 161,606, with a total of 1,238,996 votes reported in 5,987 of the State's 6,634 precincts.

The defeat of Gov. Small's third-term aspirations was recorded in this late tabulation: 6,113 precincts of 6,634; Small, 559,335; Emmerson, 976,235. A majority of 416,900.

Crowe Acknowledges Defeat.
In Chicago, where the contest between Robert E. Crowe, second term incumbent, and Judge John A. Swanson, for Cook County State's attorney, was outstanding with unabated influence throughout the State, Crowe finally acknowledged defeat as Swanson's margin crept toward 200,000.

Crowe sent Judge Swanson a message of "congratulations and best wishes." There was considerable talk in Chicago today of investigation of an allegation that crime and politics had a close hook-up and of frauds at the Tuesday primary, but the only formal step was taken by the Chicago Bar Association which authorized a committee of five of its leaders to investigate and report to "the proper authorities."

Others Nominated.
With majorities ranging up to nearly 500,000 votes, these other Republican candidates were nominated: 43

Lieutenant governor, Fred E. Sterling; State auditor, Oscar Nelson; State treasurer, O. N. Custer; representative at large, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick and Henry R. Rathbone.

The name of Frank O. Lowden, the only one listed for presidential preference, received the attention of 886,734 voters in 5,076 of the State's 6,634 precincts. President Coolidge's name was written in 2,675 times. The names of James A. Reed, 3,662; Gov. A. E. Smith, 23,128, were written in for Democratic presidential preference. A. J. Cernak won the Democratic nomination for United States Senator by a wide margin.

Alvor Berg was selected as substitute. The Republican delegates have not yet been selected.

TESTIMONY BY TEN WITNESSES SPEEDS TRIAL OF SINCLAIR

Prosecution Likely to Close Its Case by Tomorrow, Roberts Announces.

DEFENSE IS EXPECTED TO OPEN ON MONDAY

Officials of Other Oil Concerns Testify, Charging Fall Held Up Lease Facts.

(Associated Press.)

Accelerating its previous rapid pace, the Government today testified from ten witnesses and read the previous testimony from three others yesterday as it turned into the home stretch of its case against Harry P. Sinclair on the charge that he conspired with Albert B. Fall to lease Teapot Dome oil fields.

Owen J. Roberts, special counsel, then announced that today might see the wind-up of the prosecution, with a likelihood that the defense would begin by Monday. While the general theme yesterday dealt with the alleged secrecy which shrouded the Teapot Dome negotiations, testimony today is expected to take up Fall's famous Russian trip as Sinclair's agent.

Frank E. Kistler, of Denver, Colo., chairman of the board of the Producers & Refiners Co., who was summoned as a Government witness, failed to appear on account of illness. His testimony prior to the trial of the Fall-Sinclair case last October was read to the jury.

This followed information from Kistler's physician in New York that the oil operator was unable to appear, and that he was willing to come here and testify to that effect if required. Roberts had said that a bench warrant might be issued for Kistler, if such an offer were not forthcoming. Counsel for both sides agreed to the reading of Kistler's statement, which deals primarily with efforts he made to lease sections of the Teapot Dome territory.

Denied Information, Charge.

Gov. R. B. Brooks, of Wyoming; Birch Helms, in 1922 vice president of the Texas-Pacific Coal & Oil Co.; and Leslie Miller, Cheyenne (Wyo.) oil operator, all testified to efforts they made to obtain information from Secretary Fall or his office regarding the possibility of leasing Teapot Dome.

In each instance, they said that adequate information had been withheld, and that their efforts to submit propositions were not encouraged.

Each of them testified on cross-examination, however, that the facilities of their various organizations would not have been sufficient to undertake a lease which would have embodied such comprehensive provisions as that which was signed by Sinclair.

These included construction of a pipeline to connect with lines extending to the West Coast; the construction of storage tanks on the Atlantic Coast at the expense of the lessee, to be reimbursed by payment in royalty oil, and the exchange of royalty oil for fuel oil at ports convenient to naval operations.

George K. Thomas, of Denver, secretary of the Pioneer Oil & Refining Co., testified that Sinclair's Teapot Dome development was a "joint venture" between his company and the Mammoth Oil Co.—Sinclair's Teapot Dome development.

Acquisition of these by Sinclair has been dited condition imposed by Fall to the granting of the Teapot Dome lease. This contract called for payment of $200,000 in cash and $600,000 in oil for the lease, and Kistler's testimony revealed that $241,751 of this total had been paid by Sinclair prior to last fall.

Congressmen Testify.

Both Senator Kenrick, of Wyoming, and former Representative Mondell, of that State, testified concerning efforts made by them to obtain information from Fall about the status of Teapot Dome in April, 1922. Although these efforts were made as late as April 15, both said that inquiries were not answered with an acknowledgment that the lease had already been granted to Sinclair. This testimony took place officially on April 7, 1928.

Much of the testimony, especially that concerning correspondence of Fall and that having to do with the period prior to that mentioned in the indictment, went into the record over the objection of the defense.

Telegrams and correspondence of Shaffer, who took up the matter of a lease on 800 acres in Teapot with Fall in 1921, was admitted. Justice Bailey told the jury, only to show that Fall had prior knowledge of Shaffer's application for the lease and not as showing any wrongful motive on the part of the Secretary.

Shaffer's testimony was to the effect that he had spent $10,000 of his own money in developing oil lands adjacent to Teapot Dome and felt he was entitled to the acreage he wanted within the reserve if it were to be leased. After it was leased to Sinclair, the witness testified, he told him to let Sinclair about the lease, as the oil man had promised to allot the publisher 200 acres of Teapot.

Shaffer conferred with Sinclair in New York and the oil man agreed to let him have 400 acres, he testified. Called if the negotiations had ever been concluded, defense objection prevented an answer.

Navy Bill in Senate Provides More Men

(Associated Press.)

Increase the enlisted strength of the Navy from 65,250 to 86,000 would be provided in the Navy appropriation bill reported to the Senate yesterday by the appropriations committee.

This increase in personnel over that provided in the measure passed by the House was favored, the committee reported, in order that the ships of the Navy may be "efficiently manned and a greater number of enlisted personnel assigned to aviation duties."

SENATE TAX CUT PLANS STIR DEBATE IN HOUSE

Conferees Agree to Submit Major Amendments in Bill to Vote.

PETITIONS ASK CHANGES

(Associated Press.)

With the tax reduction bill still at committee hearings stage in the Senate, a move was made in the House yesterday to strengthen its stand against any revision of its $290,000,000 measure which the Senate might make in favor of the $201,000,000 plan of Secretary Mellon.

Representative Garner, of Texas, leader of the Democratic forces in tax matters, obtained an agreement from Chairman Hawley, of the ways and means committee, on the floor of the House that he would have the House vote on any major change in the bill which the Senate might make. This vote would be taken prior to acceptance by conferees of the Senate and House of any major change in the House bill.

A statement by Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, one of the administration stalwarts who would be one of the House conferees on the tax bill, that he would indorse a $200,000,000 reduction plan, brought forth Garner's request.

Meanwhile, the tax bill was still buried deep in hearings before the Senate finance committee with representatives of real estate and various business interests petitioning yesterday for changes in the bill's famous provisions. Today the committee will hear the plea of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for a heavier cut in the corporation tax than is proposed by administration, and after that Chairman Smoot plans to close the hearings and resume work on the bill.

The House debate was almost unprecedented with leaders seeking agreements for action on prospective controversies with the Senate even before the legislation has reached the Senate floor.

There are several radical differences, however, between the House tax bill and the measure which Secretary Mellon asked the Senate to adopt and already the Senate finance committee has reiterated the House proposal to cut the corporation tax from 13 1/2 per cent to 11 1/2 per cent, adopting a tentative rate of 12 per cent.

Government Closes Case Against Levine

(Associated Press.)

The Government's case against Charles A. Levine, transatlantic airplane passenger, over war contracts, has been settled out of court.

The Government had claimed Levine owed approximately $200,000 in connection with the sale of surplus war material, but the case was settled for $160,000.

The case against Levine grew out of a war material transaction contract in which the War Department turned over a large quantity of ammunition salvage to Levine to be sold on a percentage basis. When the case was sent to the Justice Department by the War Department, it was charged that Levine owed the Government approximately $500,000 more than he turned in. One phase of the case hinged on whether Levine or the Government should pay the freight on the shipment of the material.

Meanwhile, the tax bill was still buried deep in hearings before the Senate finance committee with representatives of real estate and various business interests petitioning yesterday for changes in the bill's famous provisions. Today the committee will hear the plea of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for a heavier cut in the corporation tax than is proposed by administration, and after that Chairman Smoot plans to close the hearings and resume work on the bill.

The House debate was almost unprecedented with leaders seeking agreements for action on prospective controversies with the Senate even before the legislation has reached the Senate floor.

There are several radical differences, however, between the House tax bill and the measure which Secretary Mellon asked the Senate to adopt and already the Senate finance committee has reiterated the House proposal to cut the corporation tax from 13 1/2 per cent to 11 1/2 per cent, adopting a tentative rate of 12 per cent.

Flood Bill to Have House Right of Way

(Associated Press.)

The $325,000,000 Senate-Jones flood-control bill was definitely assured yesterday of the legislative right of way in the House next week, but simultaneously with this decision by the rules committee Republican leaders agreed to a measure which would make some of the provisions of the measure.

Four of the Republican leaders—Speaker Longworth, Representative Tilton, of Connecticut, the majority floor leader; Chairman Madden, of the appropriations committee, and Chairman Smith, of the rules body—met in an informal conference tentatively agreed upon several amendments which they hope will be acceptable to the flood-control committee, which will be in charge of the bill.

Speaker Longworth said that the proposed amendments were designed to make the measure conform more closely to the original flood-control plan submitted by Army engineers and also to meet the objections which have been set forth by President Coolidge.

Day in Congress

Met at noon and adjourned at 6 o'clock to meet at noon today.

Passed the McNary-Haugen bill, 53 to 23.

Appropriations committee reported out the naval appropriation bill. It calls for $363,737,017, an increase of $4,318,780 over the House bill.

Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, denied that his resolution asking the resignation of Secretary Mellon was the outgrowth of a personal feud, and demanded and obtained an apology from Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire.

Former Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania, appeared before the commerce committee and urged the creation of a "national prosperity fund."

Postoffice committee approved bills authorizing an appropriation of $169,500,000 for road construction, in addition to the annual $75,000,000 Federal appropriation.

Public lands committee approved the Cutting bill authorizing the leasing of public land for use as aviation fields.

Set aside Friday afternoon, May 11, for memorial services for the late Senator Willis, of Ohio.

Met at noon and adjourned at 4:35 to meet at noon today.

Chairman Snell, of the rules committee, announced that the flood relief bill would be taken up not later than Tuesday. He also outlined a legislation program, and said he would be working on it by June 8.

House leaders met and decided to introduce a series of amendments to the flood relief bill, so as to meet some of the objections of President Coolidge.

Representative Garner (Democrat), of Texas, obtained from Chairman Hawley, of the ways and means committee, a promise that he would have the House vote on any major change which the Senate might make in the tax bill.

Adopted a report of an elections committee affirming the right of Representative E. T. England (Republican), West Virginia, to retain his seat in the House.

Representative Berger (Socialist), Wisconsin, introduced a new anti-lynching bill which would make it a felony to take part in a mob attack or for a State officer to permit a prisoner to be taken from him.

Delegate Davila, of Porto Rico, declared that the recent letter of President Coolidge, regarding Porto Rican citizenship, was humiliating to the people of the island.

SENATE TAX CUT PLANS STIR DEBATE IN HOUSE

Conferees Agree to Submit Major Amendments in Bill to Vote.

PETITIONS ASK CHANGES

(Associated Press.)

With the tax reduction bill still at committee hearings stage in the Senate, a move was made in the House yesterday to strengthen its stand against any revision of its $290,000,000 measure which the Senate might make in favor of the $201,000,000 plan of Secretary Mellon.

Representative Garner, of Texas, leader of the Democratic forces in tax matters, obtained an agreement from Chairman Hawley, of the ways and means committee, on the floor of the House that he would have the House vote on any major change in the bill which the Senate might make. This vote would be taken prior to acceptance by conferees of the Senate and House of any major change in the House bill.

A statement by Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, one of the administration stalwarts who would be one of the House conferees on the tax bill, that he would indorse a $200,000,000 reduction plan, brought forth Garner's request.

Meanwhile, the tax bill was still buried deep in hearings before the Senate finance committee with representatives of real estate and various business interests petitioning yesterday for changes in the bill's famous provisions. Today the committee will hear the plea of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for a heavier cut in the corporation tax than is proposed by administration, and after that Chairman Smoot plans to close the hearings and resume work on the bill.

PACIFIST PROPAGANDA.

While Congress is in the investigation business it would do well to open an inquiry into the source and identity of propaganda masquerading under the cloak of religious organizations. Some of this propaganda is vicious in the extreme, resorting to gross misrepresentation of the United States and tending to inflame international suspicion and hatred. The propagandists do not hesitate to attribute base motives to American authorities in an effort to undermine public confidence in the Government and Congress. It is reported that some of the most active workers in this propaganda are foreigners and persons recently naturalized and an inquiry might reveal that they are the recipients of funds from foreign sources.
It is a difficult task to provide for the national defense by maintaining the Navy and by developing the merchant marine. This task becomes well-nigh impossible when skillful propaganda, working upon the credulous brains of millions of Americans, concentrates with great force upon members of Congress, intimidating them and confusing them as to the real sentiment of the country. Some of the members of Congress are said to have been threatened with defeat if they dare to defy the propagandists.
Senator Caraway could do a good service by calling for an investigation into the pacifist propaganda lobby and the source of its revenues. Great sums are being spent. Who is putting up the money?

FLIGHT OF THE BREMEN.

Once more men are pitting their skill and their faith in an engine against the perils that lurk in the air over the Atlantic Ocean. Three times since early in May, 1927, expeditions essaying to fly from Europe to America have set out. First were Nungesser and Gollé. In August came the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, in company with Capt. Leslie Hamilton and Frederick F. Mitchell. Finally, in March of this year, the Hon. Elsie Mackaye, accompanied by Capt. Walter R. G. Hinchliffe, took flight, America bound, from Croydon, London. All three planes vanished after they had passed out to sea.

On March 26, the German-built monoplane Bremen put into Baldonnel, Dublin. Aboard were the Baron Ehrenfried Günther von Huenfeld, whose last flight had been staked on the transatlantic flight venture; Capt. Herman Koehl, German war flyer and night-flying expert, and Arthur Spindler, copilot. Subsequently Spindler returned to Germany and his place was taken by Col. Fitzmaurice, commandant of the Irish Free State flying forces. Day after day the Bremen lay in Baldonnel, Ireland, stormbound. Finally, at 12:38 Eastern Standard time yesterday morning, the expedition got under way.

There is a strong belief in aviation circles that the Bremen will get through successfully. She is ably manned and well constructed. Her crew delayed departure until a thoroughly favorable weather report had been received. Most careful advance preparations were made. The United States awaits the arrival of the Bremen with enthusiasm.

PROBLEM OF THE WORKLESS.

Recent inquiry and study in the great cities of the country has brought to light the problem of the discarded worker. He is a factor in unemployment and yet distinguished in many ways from the mere jobless individual. A conference on old age security and the storm which was created when Dr. Louis I. Harris, of the New York health department, forced the closing of a number of lodging houses for lack of sanitary safeguards developed the fact that thousands of professional men are included among those who have lost the ability to make a living.

The general theory is that prolongation of life through advancing health standards and the introduction of machinery on a huge scale have brought about the new state of affairs. Whether this is true or not, it is recognized that many men of 50 and 55 in apparent good physical condition have been branded as too old to hold the modern pace and in consequence are classed with the "has-beens" and "never-weres" in the search for a gainful occupation.

These men present what is in effect a new problem. They do not lack the desire to work, but even in periods of swelling production they find it increasingly difficult to qualify for anything but the most casual sort of labor. Dr. Harris has suggested that the city must be prepared to take care of these homeless individuals and suggests the formation of a central exchange in which the means of sustaining life, such as food and lodging, may be brought to these men without institutionalism, red tape or formalism. The conference on old age security, working apparently toward the same end, has suggested a study of charitable conditions among the aged poor.

The courses suggested can not be more than temporary expedients. If it is true that the advance of the machine age has created this condition it may be more reasonable to expect the same factor to cure. The introduction of machinery may have had an effect upon employment, but the mechanical era is only dawning. In many lines it has already been demonstrated that the machine age has not limited the need for labor, but increased it. As industry expands the necessity for human agencies to function with it increases. The period of adjustment through which the world is now going may be severe in some instances, but it should not beget a feeling of hopelessness.

POLITICAL HYPNOTISM.

The hypnotism of statistics was attacked recently by Virgil Jordan, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board. Mr. Jordan insisted that "despite the enormous amount of statistical information and expert opinion about business today, there was probably no time in recent years at which business men and the general public had less real understanding of business conditions or prospects than they have now." He urged that there be a revision made in current business information "to restore its practical usefulness."

The speaker's remarks, apt as they may possibly be in the sense in which they were used, could be applied with certainty and justice to the present state of political statistics. It is impossible to determine from the various and conflicting tables of delegate strength how either Kansas City or Houston will be able to shelter all of the delegates that will vote for Hoover, Smith, Reed, Lowden and the rest of those whose names figure for the moment as presidential possibilities. A hasty and by no means perfect calculation of three of the tables would indicate that the total number of delegates to the Democratic convention will exceed by at least 600 the legal list.

It would be necessary also for the delegates to be Protean actors of parts. The representatives of some States are listed on more than one table of pledged delegates. Unless they come armed with masks and other complete changes of make-up it is hard to understand how they are going to fill the dual roles for which they are now cast. Unless conditions change rapidly ledgerdom rather than politics will feature the two conventions.

However, it is more than likely that the statistical hypnosis of which Mr. Jordan made mention will wear off the political situation before long. The result is likely to be surprising. It may, in fact, develop ultimately that some of the delegates who have appeared so confidently and positively in various published tables will be voting for some candidate who as yet has not raised his voice.

VETERANS' INSURANCE.

From the start there has been a suspicion in certain quarters that the Government life insurance extended to veterans of the World War is not as cheap or as beneficial as that offered by insurance companies. Those who are thoroughly familiar with Government insurance know that the charges against it are untrue. Nevertheless, there has been constantly an obscure movement to liberalize its provisions. The movement finally has culminated in the introduction of an omnibus bill carrying several changes in compensation payments and other features designed to make the policies more attractive to veterans.
The bill was drafted along lines suggested by actuaries of several of the larger insurance companies, who appeared before the World War Veterans' committee of the House. It opens the door to all veterans who are insurable risks, whether or not they converted their insurance before the expiration date. It permits a holder to convert an endowment policy to straight life insurance, thus securing the benefit of a lower rate. It enables the insured to designate any beneficiary, whether the person is a relative or probable dependent.
There can be no just complaint as to the Government's care of World War veterans. Yet, if existing law can be made more liberal, without too great expense or burden, it should be done. As was pointed out by the actuaries, there always will exist the danger, if the veteran feels that he is not being treated liberally, that Congress will be flooded with requests for new pension legislation. Quite aside from this, however, is the fact that it is the Government's duty to deal as liberally as it possibly can with the veterans.

THE SEA LION HAD SENSE.

Otto Kemmerich, German long-distance swimmer, made short work of the record which Mrs. Schoemell set the previous week. The American woman stayed awake and afloat for 32 hours in a Miami pool. Kemmerich entered what appears to have been nothing more than an overgrown bathtub and was pulled out 46 hours later, half a dozen hours after his red sea lion had been rescued from the same puddle.

It may, of course, be possible to demonstrate that the marks set by Mrs. Schoemell and Kemmerich mean something. Whatever it is escapes the mind at the moment. Long-distance swimming records of the sort seem to be about as futile as those that were established a few years ago by marathon dancers. Unless this is the beginning of a eugenic movement designed eventually to create a race of mortals fit to engage in transatlantic swims, what is to be gained by determining the fact that man's buoyancy and ability to resist sleep can extend over a 46-hour period?

Matters probably will not be allowed to rest where they are. The record established by Kemmerich will undoubtedly tempt some other pursuer of empty honors to stay in the water for 47 hours. One encouraging feature is that the sea lion refused to remain in the competition. This goes to show that animals are not as lacking in intelligence as human beings are taught to believe.

THE COAL INQUIRY.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, chairman of the Senate committee on interstate commerce, has expressed doubt that any legislation affecting the coal industry will be enacted at this session. This is a reasonable conclusion in view of the expressed intention of Congress to adjourn some time next month, and the present unshaken state of the senatorial investigation. It hardly appears probable now that the taking of testimony can be completed before adjournment.

Lack of complete information apparently has not deterred those members of the committee who admire their own powers of legislative draftsmanship. Several bills are in preparation for presentation at the present session. They range all the way from the creation of a coal commission modeled along the lines of the Interstate Commerce Commission to proposals for changes in court procedure with respect to labor difficulties. No one of these suggested measures has even a slim chance of being enacted into law at the present session of Congress.

The conditions in the coal industry can not be dismissed in any such offhand manner. If members of the Senate committee are seriously concerned with the problem they are studying, they should get the whole picture. A real effort should be made to bring about the co-operation of labor and the operators in working out a remedy. Congressional inquiries have too often resulted in nothing more than a wordy report and half-baked legislative ideas. The antagonism that has so often been encountered by Congress while engaged in such investigations is due to a large degree to a conviction on the part of the public that such matters are weighed on congressional scales for their publicity value only.

Senator Watson is taking the proper course in making a thorough investigation of the bituminous industry, rather than proposing poggan legislation.

CHARLOTTE MEW.

One who knew the late Miss Charlotte Mew well has described her as being very small of build and stature, with a pale, thin face, large eyes and an abundance of gray hair. When she died suddenly in London a few days ago, she was 53 years of age. Her whole life was one long battle with sorrow and adversity, and the drabness of her surroundings and the hopelessness of her outlook on life gave that melancholy tinge that is characteristic of much of the verse that she wrote. She possessed the authentic poetic note, for though what she has left us is pitifully small in quantity, its quality is of the best. "Polignant" and "arresting" are adjectives that have been applied to her poems, and they are peculiarly appropriate words, for the poems seem to spring with spontaneous appeal from a noble and passionate heart.

Charlotte Mew had the artistic instinct highly developed. She showed this in many ways, not least in her unsparing, if somewhat fastidious, self-criticism and in the quantities of her verses that in her periods of overwhelming depression she destroyed. It has been estimated that her published poetry is considerably less than a tenth of what she actually wrote. Her poems first appeared in various periodicals. Seventeen of them were collected together in one slim volume, "The Farmer's Bride," in 1916. Eleven additional poems appeared in the re-issue of 1921. Both editions attracted attention and made many friends and admirers for the author. Among others that discerned in them something quite out of the ordinary was Thomas Hardy, who invited the surprised and delighted writer to spend a week-end at Max Gate, and greeted her as the best woman poet of her day. Later he joined with John Masefield and Walter de la Mare in recommending her for a civil list pension which the prime minister, Stanley Baldwin, gracefully granted. Unfortunately, she did not live very long to enjoy it.

Charlotte Mew had many fine qualities, for which her friends will remember her, but every one will remember her as a true poet of rare quality.

FOOD AND FARM POPULATION.

Feeling it to be of public interest for a scientific statement to be made as to why farm lands, like many in New England, are returning to a state of nature, Dr. Galpin, economist of the Department of Agriculture, reports that there is nothing abnormal in the so-called process of farm depopulation. It is not primarily an industrial situation, but an economic one. The swing back to the farms is ordained in the calendar of undisclosed events as coincident with abatement of the oversupply of the cities by the farms, with "fiber and food." When the cities need more food the farms will supply it.

It is refreshing to have cast upon the canvas a picture of the action of economic law, undistorted by political predilections and selfish proposals. Back of all the conditions which enter into farm population and the supply of foodstuffs lies, of course, the simple law of diminishing returns. When the supply goes beyond possibility of absorption, production falls off. In the process, for the time, labor is released. Farm population is, therefore, not a matter primarily of how many individuals are tilling the soil but how much food the country needs. Dr. Galpin gives the assurance that the expansion of consumption is virtually unlimited, but the mechanizing of labor on the farms, by the use of a multitude of power devices, does have the effect of causing food production to run ahead, for the time, of food consumption.

Is there any one who would want to see a return to the wooden plowshare and the physical drudgery that made the man with a hoe the symbol of hopelessness? This expert says that the balance between the industrial centers and agriculture will be at the point at which the demand for food overtakes the growing efficiency of farming. Human measures may modify the action, but they can not thwart the inevitability of the basic working of economic forces. Interferences which are in the nature of expedients are in their very nature perilous.

Once again a measure has been introduced in the Senate having to do with the regulation and sale of firearms in the District. The bill was drawn up by Maj. Hesse, superintendent of police. It provides that the Commissioners may issue a license to carry a weapon whenever the applicant can show that his purpose is to protect his life or property. Should a person be found armed without a license it would be regarded as prima facie evidence that he was a criminal or potential criminal. The superintendent of police would be directed to keep record of all persons to whom pistol permits were issued. Dealers in firearms would be required to investigate each prospective customer and to make a report of a sale to police headquarters within six hours.

How to Write.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

ALL people who earn a living by writing for the public prints are deluged with letters from amateurs who wish to know the royal road to an editor's heart. Almost without exception, they think successful writers get by as a result of luck or pull or some trick unknown to amateurs. And they think editors are a peculiar breed, who arrive at their decisions by mysterious processes.

But editors are ordinary men, with ordinary tastes. The more ordinary they are—the more people they are like—the more successful they are.

I once sat in a great bare room and talked with George Horace Lorimer, the hard-boiled, practical business man whose personality made the Saturday Evening Post. "I take stories home to read," said he. "If I like them, I take it for granted Post readers will."

J. C. Derieux, editor of the American Magazine, sat before my fire devouring a late lunch from a tea wagon and discoursing between bites concerning the ways of writers. "Albert Payson Terhune's manuscript is impressive," said he. "You can tell he has vigorous convictions; his periods and commas punch through the paper."

Once I sat in a little house on Hollis street and drank home brew with H. L. Mencken. "I am frail and vain," said he, "and if a writer praises me, I read his manuscript with a kindly eye."

And there you are. The editors of America's two most popular magazines and the most celebrated of American critics are human. In all ways that matter to the amateur seeking a market, they are like the butcher, the baker and the plumber.

The moral is obvious. Write to please the man who delivers your milk. If he reads your stuff with delight, slaps his thigh, guffaws, or becomes absorbed and forgets his errand, any editor in America will greet you with open arms.

Don't write to please college professors. They are few. Magazines aren't printed for them. The leading magazines are printed for common people, with tastes like yours, and they are leading magazines because their editors like and buy the kind of stuff ordinary people like and buy.

If you would seem wonderful to everybody, be like everybody.

Another good way to keep from growing old is to try verifying the manufacturer's claim that she'll do eighty.

case will be generally approved. He may eventually win his freedom from the Lima Hospital for criminal insane, but there is no reason why the fight should be made easier for him. His trial at Cincinnati was a travesty. Its only redeeming feature was the fact that Judge Lueders took the jury at its word when it pronounced the former "bootleg king" not guilty of murder by reason of insanity. This judge committed him to the Lima Hospital. Remus has obtained a verdict from the third district court of appeals that he was "sane beyond a reasonable doubt." Had not the supreme court granted a stay of execution the same day, he would have been freed by this finding. Whatever may come of the State's appeal, Remus has once again encountered an obstacle in a court which realizes the inestimable harm that is being done to justice and respect for laws by the all-too-free use of insanity pleas to escape penalty for crime.

Pedestrian Control.
Baltimore Sun: Pedestrians no longer rate merely as potential obstructions to the motor traffic. An expert in Boston has studied their habits in their natural environment and is shocked. He finds that they jumble themselves together and collide with each other on the streets of his city, which, as he mournfully puts it, possesses "the densest sustained pedestrian movement" in America. Naturally he asks that they be regulated, and perhaps that is the solution for his especial problem; but other cities whose pedestrians are not so dense can still trust them to avoid each other on the sidewalks. Individualism is not entirely extinct.

TESTING THE TELEPHONE.

Alexander Graham Bell, observes the Detroit News, once told a humorous experience of his own in the early days of the telephone, which he invented. At the time of the Centennial Exposition in 1876 he was invited to go to Philadelphia and exhibit his invention at a convention of scientists. He was not inclined to accept, but his fiancée, who later became Mrs. Bell, insisted upon his going, loaned him the money, and took him in a carriage to the station in Boston, together with all the necessary paraphernalia.

In Philadelphia a wire was put up reaching about a mile, and on the evening of the test an assistant was placed at the far end. The most distinguished scientist present was asked to speak into the large and strange-looking instrument. In a loud voice he said: "Hey, diddle, diddle, the cat and the fiddle." Finish that."

He waited a moment, then: "He said it: 'The cow jumped over the moon.'"

There was great applause. When Prof. Bell met his assistant he asked if the scientist's voice had come plainly over the wire.

"I did not understand him at all," the assistant replied. "All I said was 'Please repeat.'"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Flood Legislation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your editorial on "Flood Control," I find this sentence: "Many members of Congress hold that President Coolidge would not veto any flood control bill, however objectionable it might be, because of the popular demand for flood legislation as a life-saving precaution." There was a time when a popular demand for flood legislation was shaking the whole country, but we Americans are a mercenary people, and our forgetfulness is always in running order. The popular demand for flood legislation has practically died out in all sections except where the floods were destructive. We go to extremes in everything, but the extremes do not last long. President Coolidge would quickly approve a correct and judicious measure for flood control, whether there was any popular clamor for it or not, and he will just as certainly veto a vicious measure, even if the clamor still existed.

Some measure for control of floods is demanded in the interest of all the people, but has Congress given to the question the careful thought necessary to a proper realization? Last fall demonstrated that the millions that have been expended on the Mississippi River have been wasted. The waste was because the matter was not thoroughly studied before plans were adopted. The demand was for something immediate; that something was done, but its inefficiency has been proved by experience. To properly complete a work that will prevent these damages by flood will require at least twenty years. A start, however, can be and ought to be made at once.

W. T. ELLIOT.

Why Not Study American History?
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Is our public school system what it ought to be? If one can judge from the record made it is exceedingly lame, at least so far as American history is concerned. Of late there has been much criticism in many parts of the country of the textbooks used on the history of the United States. They may, as has been charged, be full of errors, but the trouble does not all lie with the books used. Too much of the time is taken up with ancient history, and too little to that of the present time. The history of Greece, Egypt, and Rome can well be left to later years, but not so with the history of our own country, which is truly modern. A little experiment has lately been made in the way of asking certain questions of a number who are now in the last year in high school.

Some of the questions asked were as follows: Who founded Rome; who commanded the besieging armies at Troy; name the principal gods and goddesses in Greek mythology. On these questions they made an average of 90 out of a possible 100. Then American history was tried as follows: When and where was the Constitution of the United States formulated; name the Presidents of the United States in the order of their service; who was the first President; who commanded the Union Army at the close of the Civil War; what was the first and the last battle of that war? On these the average was 11 out of a possible 100. A knowledge of American history is of much more importance than a knowledge of Greek mythology.

THE SPOTLIGHT

By JOHN J. DALY

Along about 8 o'clock this evening, another little theater will be opened in Washington—"The Band Box" up U street, way between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets. Arthur Leslie Smith, who once had a hand in the long run of "Able, My Dear," down on Broadway Avenue, is responsible for this latest venture in theatricals, a theater designed to satisfy the wants of the intelligencia and the literati; which means, of course, that babbity will have none of it. To get away in the grand manner, all the White House correspondents, the boys who pick presidential candidates and forecast cabinets, when the are not busy interviewing guests at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue, have been invited to the opening. This is to be a preview of "The Last Moment," or, in newspaper parlance, a second or so before the deadline. In other words, "Press-time."

Lee Somers, stepping out of the role of dramatic critic, heralds the coming of the Metropolitan Grand Opera, at Poli's next week. It seems that the stars are to have a gala time in Washington. When they are on stage, they are to be entertained. On Friday next, no opera scheduled, the entire company, and many music lovers of Washington, will be guests of Mrs. Lyman Kendall at Kentdale.

Alfred Head, representing the Theater Guild, rushes down from Boston just too late to catch the Sunday edition with his wares; so he waits Washington, in the week-day notices, to bear in mind that "Porgy" is the way here and will be shown in the National Theater when Mr. Flo Ziegfeld manages to get "Rio Rita" out of the city. Most of the action in "Porgy" takes place in a house down in Charleston, S. C., the locale of the play. Catfish row, they call it in the play, is the place. It is known as Cabbage row, a big double house on Church street. Mr. Head furnishes the information that a prominent New Yorker recently purchased the old mansion house in which most of the action of "Porgy" takes place.

COL. G. T. LANGHORNE WEDS MARY WALLER

Lady Astor, Colonel's Cousin, and His Sister, Mrs. Clayton, of Capital, Attend.

London, April 12 (A.P.)—Col. George T. Langhorne, U. S. A., and Miss Mary Waller, of Chicago, were married at noon today at St. Peter's Parish Church, Cliveden, near the country home of Lady Astor, a cousin of the colonel. The wedding was attended by Lady Astor, the colonel's sister, Mrs. Fowell Clayton, of Washington, D. C., and Col. and Mrs. J. R. Thomas. Col. Thomas, who is military attaché at the American Embassy in London, is an old friend of Col. Langhorne. After the ceremony Col. and Mrs. Langhorne came here to pass a fortnight, and then will go to the United States.

Col. Langhorne, who was assistant to the late Maj. Leonard Wood, Governor General of the Philippines, went to Paris recently, where he met Mrs. Clayton and Miss Waller, and the party came to London yesterday. The wedding plans were guarded in much secrecy. Miss Waller not even telling her closest friends. She called to her father immediately after the ceremony.

Dr. and Mrs. James W. Houstis, of Pasadena, Calif., have taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. E. H. Woodson and her daughter, Miss Jean Woodson, went yesterday to Lexington, Va., to attend the Easter hop at V. M. I.

The cook book committee of the Congressional Club will be presented at the Congress of the D. A. R. by Mrs. Porter Dale, of Vermont, who will preside over a booth where the books will be offered for sale. Mrs. Dale will be assisted by a group of young girls and by members of the club.

Adventuring with Ann

Next week will find Margaret Withers an exceedingly busy person, dividing her time between her shop at 1832 Connecticut avenue and the booths which she has taken in the D. A. R. exhibition.

Those of us who are familiar with Margaret Withers' fascinating shop know what to expect of the booths—the daintiest and most exquisite clothes for children—the smartest and most recent novelties. There is scarcely another small shop in Washington which carries a wider or lovelier variety of things.

Miss Withers tells me, also, that she is going to feature especially Maple Grove candles—which are utterly delicious.

Yesterday I overheard a smartly dressed woman making an appointment at Underwood & Underwood's for a sitting for her mother.

"I've always wanted a good picture of mother," she said, "and last night when I saw a reference somewhere to Mother's Day, it occurred to me that it would be rather a nice time to have one made—didn't you think?" Undoubtedly it is. A picture of your mother—a picture of yourself with your mother—or a picture of yourself and your children with your mother. (Underwood & Underwood charge no more for group pictures than they do for single ones.) Even those of us who no longer have our mothers with us have somewhere an old picture from which might be made an exquisite miniature. Could there be a more charming way of remembering?

Spring frocks! Can one ever have too many?

For you who plan to go in search of just the right frock—or frocks—tomorrow (Saturday) here is the information that the Nelson Jule, 1627 Connecticut avenue, is having a sale of 50 specially priced silk and printed dresses. Regularly sold for from $18.00 to $22.50, they are to be marked at $15.

All of them are new models, (one or two pieces) with plain, pleated or circular skirts. The colors are black, brown, blue and combination and the sizes run from 16 to 42.

Lady Heath May Fly But at Her Own Risk

Cairo, Egypt, April 12 (A.P.)—Lady Heath, flying from Cape Town to London alone, has received permission from the air ministry to fly at her own risk. She has been told here because the authorities refuse to allow her to proceed without an escort and none was available.

The morning flight is thoroughly covered by the classified ads. Quick results at nominal cost. Just phone Main 4205.

Cold weather and steam heat and last, but by no means least, the winds of March have played havoc with the skins of most of us. Look in your mirror and ask yourself if this isn't so. Then put on your newest spring frock an ask yourself if it wouldn't be ten times prettier if your skin looked a little less tired. For not the loveliest gown in the world is at its best on a woman who neglects her skin.

Lottie Marsden, formerly with Elizabeth Arden, has an exceedingly restful and attractive place at 1702 Connecticut avenue, where she will teach you how to care for your skin at home and where she offers advice freely. Also, (and there are probably many of you who will be glad to know this) she will be glad to make an appointment for you in the evening if you are unable to come to her during the day. Phone North 6709.

There was once a foolish housekeeper who spent her time bemoaning the state of her walls and curtains. "Those terrible radiators," she would wail. "One week after I've put up fresh curtains they are as dirty as if I'd never touched them. And the walls!—done over in September—and look at them!" "Upon my word," said her husband to me two months ago, "it's getting to be an obsession with her. She doesn't think or talk anything else."

"Why don't you see the Trio Radiator Cover Co., 1715 Connecticut avenue?" I suggested. "Have the covers put in now and be spared all this agony next fall."

Today I listened to fifteen minutes of his enthusiasm: "Moderately priced during the week are delightfully informal, while should you prefer a larger and more formal party there are always the Saturday night dinner dances, which are held in the ballroom, and for which it is wise to make reservations ahead.

Wardman Park has long been exceedingly popular with the younger set as well as matrons who like to entertain attractively. The food is delicious, the service unusually good and the music—well, I have said that the younger set approve, which means that the music is not to be surpassed.

Recently I have spoken to several women who have been taking ultraviolet ray treatments at Hazel Dillon's sun Parlor, 1000 Conn. ave. (second floor), and have found them most enthusiastic.

One told me that without them she would not have been able to keep on with her work this past winter. An older woman had been taking them for some muscular trouble, another for skin trouble. There are a great many things for which they are now used. Even sun baths are not as beneficial, since any part of the body treated must be directly exposed to the sun. Why not phone Hazel Dillon if you are interested?

of leaving insurance to the Union Trust Company for management under a Life Insurance Trust—instead of to a widow or minor children—is that this plan avoids the losses almost sure to result from lack of experience in business and financial matters. Talk this over with any one of our officers.

UTILITIES BOARD ORDERS TRACTION POLE CHANGES

Tracks Also Must Be Moved on Wisconsin Avenue to Meet Widening.

BUSES TO REPLACE CARS

Center poles in Wisconsin avenue northwest from Tenleytown to the District line were ordered removed yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission. The Washington Railway & Electric Co. was told to not only replace them with side poles and span wire construction similar to that in Connecticut avenue, but also to move its car-tracks to the middle of the street. The thoroughfare is to be widened and paved this year.

Motor buses will be substituted for half-hourly street cars on three lines of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. beginning May 1. It is an economy measure. The company asked permission to make the change and the commission yesterday granted it. The early morning buses, fifteen of them, will be operated as follows:

Georgetown-Lincoln Park line, from East Capitol and Prospect streets northwest, from 1 to 527 a. m.; Columbia line, from Fifteenth street and New York avenue northwest to Fifteenth and H streets northeast, from 2:23 to 5:07 a. m.; and Ninth street line from Brightwood to the Wharves, from 2:03 to 4:03 a. m.

The commission received a petition from the Catholic University asking that the Park road bus line of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. be extended south of the Soldiers' Home grounds to the university.

It was said that this might prove to be impracticable, but that cross-town service from the Northwest section might be otherwise provided. The communication was referred to the traction company for a report.

German Cotton Men Depart for South

Seventeen German cotton manufacturers and shippers from the Westphalia-Rhine section of Germany, left yesterday for a two-day visit to the United States under the auspices of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The group of Germans, which arrived in New York three days ago on the beginning of their tour, will visit more than a score of cities in the South Atlantic States during the next few weeks. Also the visitors will make an inspection tour of the cotton mills in the New England States, New Orleans and other large Southern cotton cities will be visited.

An tour is in charge jointly of Theodore Schwartz, of Germany, and H. B. Capehart, Washington representative of the American Express Co. Carl Weyl, longest cotton manufacturer in Germany, is in the party of visitors.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, April 12 (A.P.).—Failure of improved weather reports to cause general or aggressive selling in the cotton market today promoted covering and early declines were followed by rallies. After selling off to 19.46, July advanced to 19.69 and closed at 19.58, compared with 19.55 at the close the previous day. The general market closed steady, net unchanged to 7 points higher.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 2 to 5 points. Active months sold 7 to 9 points net lower in early trading under liquidation combined with local and Southern selling. Evidently this was promoted by the outlook for clearing weather with rising temperature in the South and belief that unfavorable crop features so far developed had been discounted by recent advances.

Liverpool was a considerable buyer here at the decline which had resulted in a widening of the differences between the two markets and after initial offerings had been absorbed the volume of business tapered off. No doubt failure of the better weather to promote heavier offerings was a disappointment to recent sellers for a reduction, which led to covering, and the market acted as if the early buying had left it comparatively bare of contracts for the time being.

May sold up from 19.60 to 19.78 and October from 19.30 to 19.43, the relationship steady ruling of May helping the turnover in cotton cloths was disappointing with Shanghai auctions unsatisfactory.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, April 12 (A.P.).—The F. W. Woolworth Stores handled their largest Easter week trade this year, a total of $6,977,268 and an increase of $306,716, or 4.50 per cent over a year ago. Easter Saturday sales were $2,608,555. This good showing was made despite bad weather over many important sections of the country the latter part of Easter week.

Wall Street was busy today with estimates of first quarter profits of General Motors Corporation, which were put at $70,000,000, or around $4 a share on the common, almost equalling the record-breaking second quarter last year of $76,698,799, or $4.27 a share. Talk of an extra dividend of $2 on the common, with the regular quarterly of $1.25 also stirred interest.

American International Corporation earned $1.28 a share in the first quarter, against $1.07 in the same period of 1926. The net income rose to $637,164 from $526,500.

M. L. Molan, vice president Purdy Bakeries Co., has been elected president to succeed the late Thomas O'Connor.

The construction program of American Gas & Electric for its subsidiaries contemplates expenditure of $44,000,000, most of which will be completed in 1928. Completion of the $17,000,000 extension to the Philo power station of the Ohio Power Co. is the chief item.

First quarter earnings of the Lambert Co. are reported to be 30 per cent ahead of those of the corresponding period last year. Wall Street hears unconfirmed reports of a huge merger of drug companies to be built around Lambert as a nucleus.

L. R. Powell, president of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, says preliminary figures for March show surplus of $1,145,000, a huge surplus after fixed charges, but before adjustment bond interest, although gross revenues were $500,000 less than in March last year. For the first four months this year, he said indications were that net available for adjustment bond interest would exceed $570,000. A half year's interest on the bonds is $625,000.

Harry Scullin, of New York, president of the Scullin Steel Co., which has a plant in St. Louis; John J. Mitchell, Jr., Chicago banker, and James Williams, secretary and treasurer of the Chicago & Alton, have been elected directors of the Chicago & Alton. They succeed F. J. Wade, of St. Louis; the late John J. Mitchell, Jr., Chicago, and V. D. Skipworth, New York.

Net profit of Libby, McNeill & Libby for the year ended March 3 was $1,775,375, equal to $9.88 a share on the 7 per cent preferred on which dividends have accumulated three years. Allowance for the annual preferred dividend, balance was equal to 76 cents a share on the common, against $13.91 on the preferred and $1.84 on the common the year before.

J. Grant Forbes, vice president of Blair & Co. Inc., has been appointed American representative on the board of monopolies of Yugoslavia, succeeding Nelson O'Shaughnessy, its representative of the American bondholders.

Eugene V. Leake has been elected a

PRETTY GIRLS, A WARNING!

EVERYWHERE you see the news printed. "The mode is softening and becoming feminine. Tiers, flares, bows, lingerie touches—all these are new notes on smartness." With this new freedom of choice in clothes, this getting away from the cramped limits of standardization, we may want to stretch ourselves so generously (sardonically speaking) that we lean over backwards. Particularly in the case of the "pretty" woman—she of doll-like features, large eyes and curly hair—is there a dangerous inclination to overstep the bounds of even a lenient mode. This type often feels that ruffles and ribbons and furbelows are just their kind of thing. Maybe in moderation! And that's warning!

No matter what our types may be, none of us can afford to forget that simplicity and appropriateness are the two guiding stars of good taste that are never extinguished. It is a safe thing to say that, generally, if we are in doubt whether to add or subtract some bit of trimming, it is better to subtract than to add it.

With the advent of light-colored clothes, the pretty girl is sorely tempted to break out in a lot of ultra-feminine frocks, befrilled and in "cute" colors and laden with lace. She may even be unable to resist wearing her boy's fantastically dressed to the office. Those who "know" would surely look upon her costume with disapproval instead of with the admiration that she hoped to excite. At any rate, a busy day does not unattractive things to a frock designed for a garden party. Colors may be pastel and becoming, they have character. The range of smart choice is particularly appealing this spring, but it must be remembered that appropriateness is the ruling factor in choosing various clothes. In-between shades may be worn to business, but I feel that the strongly vivid colors should be left for sportswear or for evening things.

Our pretty girl may try so hard to accent her good looks that her efforts take on the character of a burlesque. The most inviting pitfalls are encountered in the field of accessories. It probably is a terrible temptation to add the gorgeous length of ribbon to an already complete frock or to repeat the color note in a narrow band in the hair. Artificial flowers, excellent in their place, cause her to indulge again in a discretion against a dress that might, in its original form, have been in good taste. The bags and shoes chosen by the girl who concentrates on being "pretty" are too often conglomerations of everything that they shouldn't be. She unconsciously thinks that very rory clients and very curly hair make her youth more effective. In reality, too much rouge or a kinky wave are an evidence that she lacks an understanding of what chic is.

Over-elaboration in dress should be carefully avoided by those belonging to the "pretty" type. A woman may be every bit as feminine and charming and a thousand times more smart if she will take the lessons of simplicity and appropriateness to heart.

A Lesson in Simplicity

VOGUE 5506

THE young women sketched above were seen lunching together the other day in a very fashionable restaurant. They were looking at a great deal of comment from all the people in the restaurant especially since most of the women lunching at this smart place had learned well their lesson in simplicity. From her hat to her shoes this young person was a lesson in simplicity. The dress was a simple, straight, knee-length affair, with a high waist line and a small collar. The shoes were simple, low-heeled pumps. The hat was a simple, wide-brimmed affair. The young woman was a lesson in simplicity.

learned that you can not combine all fashion notes in one costume. Her friend was extremely smart and dressed in this costume she was prepared for any occasion which might arise after she left home in the morning. Her two-piece costume was made of heavy shantung silk. It also showed a higher waist line and used the smart jabot effect on the coat. Her straw hat turned up all around gave her a cool spot. The outfit was simple and smart. The shoes were simple, low-heeled pumps. The hat was a simple, wide-brimmed affair. The young woman was a lesson in simplicity.

Onion Soup Celery

Mashed Potatoes or Browned Potatoes
Molded Spinach Applesauce
Honolulu Chocolate Pudding with Hard Sauce
Coffee

We shall save our lemon tart recipe for tomorrow's supper until tomorrow morning's column. Molded salmon loaf may, of course, have been used this evening in a menu of our own construction, and the chicken aspic which may form a part of tomorrow's menu, if salmon is used tonight, can be made with canned chicken as successfully as with fresh.

Molded Salmon Loaf.

1 can salmon (1½ cups, flaked),
1 scant teaspoonful salt,
1½ tablespoonfuls sugar,
1 tablespoonful flour,
1 tablespoonful mustard,
Few grains cayenne,
¾ cupful milk,
2 eggs yolk,
¼ cupful vinegar,
1½ tablespoonfuls gelatin,
¾ cupful cold milk.

Separate salmon into flakes. Measure and mix the dry ingredients in top part of double boiler, add the milk and stir until smooth. Cook and stir until thickened. Mix eggs and vinegar. Pour a little of the hot mixture into the egg mixture and stir, then pour back into top part of double boiler, stir and cook until it thickens, about five minutes. Remove from fire, add the gelatin, which has been soaked in the cold milk, stir until gelatin is dissolved. Rinse mold in cold water and if desired arrange design, using capers, green and red peppers, eggs or pickles. Put salmon on top and pour gelatin mixture over all. Chill. When jellied, unmold and serve with sliced cucumber or cucumber sauce.

Chicken Aspic.

4 tablespoonfuls gelatin,
1½ cupful cold water,
1 pint celery cut in small pieces,
1½ pint well-seasoned meat stock,
1 pint chicken cut in small pieces,
1 pint gelatin in cold water. Heat the stock to boiling point. Add soaked gelatin, remove from fire and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Strain. Rinse mold in cold water, pour in enough of the stock and gelatin mixture to fill mold ¼-inch in depth. Chill, and when set arrange design, using hard-boiled eggs, pimiento, green pepper, etc. Cover this with a little of the stock gelatin mixture and chill again until design is set. Mix celery and chicken and fill mold with this, pour the remaining meat stock gelatin mixture over the whole. Chill. This may be molded in individual molds or a large mold.

CORRESPONDING

A GIRL has written to me asking my help and advice about corresponding with a boy whom she met at some sort of a church bazaar or party. She is out of college and over 21, and remembering how much one feels one knows at that time I think it's rather sweet of her to consult me. It seems that about a week after the boy was introduced to her she received a letter from him which she answered. Now she has received another. She would like to answer it, as she likes him and thinks he would be a pleasant acquaintance, but doesn't want him to suppose her too interested.

I can see no harm in a correspondence between two decent, pleasant young people, both beginning in the world both attracted by the glimpses they've had of each other, both coming new to all sorts of youthful points of view which they would like to exchange. Perhaps, both a little lonely, if they happen to be earning their livings away from home.

If I were a girl I'd write, from time to time, as I felt inclined. She might put down whatever seemed especially interesting to her of the week's happenings, her experiences, and her thoughts about them, and send it off when she had filled her paper. Not too often, not too much, but enough to give her friendly feeling scope and make him wish for more. I wouldn't write just foolishness, but I shouldn't be afraid to be merry if I felt like it.

I suggest that she answer his letter something like this:
"Dear Dick: Of course, I remember you, and the party at the old church. It was great fun and I am glad we met under such good auspices. It wasn't a long acquaintance but if it seemed pleasant enough for you to want to tell me I am glad, and, as you see, I am answering at once. I haven't much to tell you, news that would interest you that is. The kind of things a girl does are rather monotonous, but I have been doing some home work and I hope perhaps when I get to the end of this one, I'll send it to you to see if your tastes agree with mine.
Yours sincerely,
MARY BROWN."

TOBACCO ANGINA.

THE use of tobacco can cause angina pectoris, or a disorder with all the earmarks of that serious painful affliction. Such is the opinion of Dr. E. Moscovitz. The doctor reports three cases of tobacco angina seen by him, one a doctor, another a merchant, and a third a lawyer. Some of his opinions on the subject are:

1. Tobacco may cause symptoms resembling angina.
2. The variety of tobacco used makes no difference.
3. The pain is worse and lasts longer than in true angina.
4. After a person has had one attack he may be very sensitive to tobacco.
5. It is not enough for a man with tobacco angina to limit his dose—he must swear off completely.
6. The pain does not stop for some weeks after the use of the weed has stopped. Time is required to get the tobacco out of the system.

Dr. Moscovitz quotes chemists who found nicotine, colicine, aldehydes and carbon monoxide in tobacco smoke.

burned to the end. A well cured tobacco is less harmful than is a green leaf product.

All of this is found in a recent number of the Journal of the American Medical Association. The same number of the same journal has an article on lead poisoning due to the use of snuff. This is one of a series of lead poisoning tests made by Dr. Baur and Mr. Ropes in Boston. They report the case of a man who used snuff and who suffered from a moderately severe lead poisoning. Analysis of the snuff he used showed the presence of considerable lead.

It appears that lead poisoning due to the use of snuff has been recognized for 150 years. In former times it was more frequently encountered than it now is. The custom of adulterating snuff with lead has been pretty well discontinued. In present-day practice, when lead gets into snuff it gets there from the metal foil in which the snuff is wrapped, or which is used to cover the cork. Some times the snuff is put up in tin containers. The poisoning of the snuff with lead is accidental rather than intentional.

HE HAS HOUSEMAID'S KNEE.

J. T. D. writes: Last summer I was kneeling quite a little weeding strawberries, and my left knee to swell. This swelling has not gone down. In fact, it gets a little worse and is slightly painful at times.

Can you give me any advice what to do for it?

Answer: You have housemaid's knee. You would like to know what that is and how a man could get it. As an appendix you would like to know if it is a disease of the knee, or if it is a housework by city doctors. It is a form of synovitis, or inflammation of the membrane of the joint. It is caused by the knee being bent too much. Some cases are benefited by strapping or wearing an elastic bandage between the knee and the hip. There are some cases that require operation.

Note with great care the distinction at a love score between your partner's Major with a Minor which shows strength in that Minor but no assistance for a Trump in any other suit, and denying it with the other Major (which shows strength in that Minor and possible strength in one other suit). To illustrate: South one Spade, West pass; North holds:

♠ A-K-Q-J
♥ A-K-Q-J
♦ A-K-Q-J
♣ A-K-Q-J

With No. 1, North should jump South's Spade. With more than normal Spade support, a Heart would not be sound; but with No. 2, having exactly normal Spade support and a very strong six-card Heart suit, Hearts should be bid instead of jumping Spades.

In No. 3, South has bid one Spade; in No. 4, a Diamond in both cases West has passed, score love-all.

♠ A-K-Q-J
♥ A-K-Q-J
♦ A-K-Q-J
♣ A-K-Q-J

In No. 3, North should jump his partner's Spade bid to four; in No. 4, he should not jump his partner's Diamond, but should bid three Spades. This subject will be continued tomorrow.

Ring-Around-the-Rosey.

FIFTEEN thousand educators were present and, as it seemed to me, 15,000 speeches were made in a big five-day meeting of the National Education Association in Boston recently. I would give a $1 postage stamp, which I have in my desk and for which I have no use, if I could hear or read the report of your superintendent or principal, whose expenses were paid by the school district to attend a convention where much was said and nothing was done.

I would like very much to discover the keynote to this convention. What stirring thing is taking place in education? What "crying need" is now present? What "danger lines" are we about to meet? In other words, what's what in education?

Three educators, however, did star something. President Lowell, of Harvard, got nowhere in particular. He talked the public school system for excessive costs, waste of youths' time, superficial courses and poor preparation for college. He said there were many ways of killing a cat besides choking it with butter, referring, I suppose, to the fact that our snapp courses are choking the youngsters with soft-pedaled education. Then he went on to tell how fine the teaching was in Harvard College as compared with the average high school, all of which proved to me he might know Harvard, but he does not know much of the high schools of America.

The new president of the department of superintendents of the National Education Association told President Lowell, and all those who think like him, that the main function of the American high school is not to send students to college but rather to prepare students to meet the conditions of life. A Leopold or a Loeb could easily get into college because all the tests which colleges use to determine the fitness of a boy are of the intellectual order.

It seems to me that former Supt. McAndrews, of Chicago, drove the biggest spikes when he said: "You remember, perhaps, what Dr. Eliot said to us not so many years ago. The fear of losing one's job has kept education in America 50 years behind its possible improvement." If I read the times, the chambers of commerce, the Lovells, the associations of mayors and governors will succeed in their protests against the rising costs of education. Then our magnificent high schools will follow in the tracks of Napoleon the Little, but at an inglorious end at some Sedan.

"Once the policy of the schools was to prepare a small number of students for college. Now the situation is that we get all kinds of students, studious and lazy, dirty and clean, brought in by the force of the compulsory education law.

"There is no use in your trying to train 900 pupils for leadership. The graduates of our old high schools are out playing golf, while the real leaders who never saw the inside of a high school are herding the voters to the polls."

What truth is in this statement? The leaders in music never finished high school. Had they done so they would not have had time to study music. The leaders of art are not college graduates. Had they stayed in the regular school they would have had no opportunity for acquiring skill in craftsmanship. Many leaders in business are neither high school nor college graduates, but I doubt if this will be true of future leaders. Leaders in politics are probably born and not made by either schools or colleges.

I have always felt it a mistake to tell high school and college youths that they are bound to be leaders. It would be much fairer to say to them, "You snapp courses are choking the youngsters with soft-pedaled education. Then he went on to tell how fine the teaching was in Harvard College as compared with the average high school, all of which proved to me he might know Harvard, but he does not know much of the high schools of America."

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.

High Hat.

I got the surprise of my life the other day. My sweetheart informed me that unless I graduated from a high school he would not consider marrying me. To be sure I have only one year more and I am perfectly willing to finish high school, but do you think that my sweetheart should make me graduate from high school. She folks want him to marry a university graduate. I am no dumb-bell.

RESENTFUL.

Answer—If I had a sweetheart who demanded that I graduate from a high school, he would get his ring back and I would how accompanied by his hat. If he came to me and said gently, "I wish, dear, that you would finish high school because you are so nearly through that it is a pity not to finish the job," I would very likely fall on his neck and weep and finish high school. But he doesn't. He demands that I graduate from high school. I am no dumb-bell.

Lelong Styles.

The Goofer went to see the Paris styles, too. He even bought a lot and now he wants expert opinion on them. Polly is trying on the gown, designed by Lelong, that he got for Cousin Arabella—pointed neckline, pointed trimming lines and a skirt that falls in points. And a shoulder flower with hands that drip their way from shoulder to waistline.

(All Rights protected by the George Matthew Adams Service—Trade Mark Registered United States Patent Office.)

Adelaide is modeling the pajamas the Goofer bought for Aunt Hattie—also designed by Lelong. A pajama ensemble of white crepe de chine, pajama set and a three-quarter length coat of black and white print. Adelaide thinks of Aunt Hattie and sighs. It doesn't seem right, and they all begin to think something should be done about it without delay.

Something will be done about it. The Goofer's female relatives will have to do without their Paris frocks because the Goofer is going to sell them now. It was all settled when Mitz put on this Lelong evening gown of black lace which drapes so perfectly and suggests a long boivore and was certainly never intended for the Goofer's grandmother.

Tomorrow—More Paris Styles.

Twin Swimmers Set "Monotony" Record

New York, April 12 (A.P.)—It is probably a record for something or other—monotony, perhaps. The Zitenfeld twins, Bernice and Rhylis, swam up and down an indoor pool 704 times without stopping in 5 hours 10 minutes.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES McDONALD

DEAR Miss McDonald: I have read your column for some time but I haven't yet read of another case like mine. I am 20 and have been engaged to a man 12 years my senior for two years. We get along just wonderfully together and he is a very gentleman. We have set the wedding date several times and I just keep putting him off. He has asked me to marry him soon but I am afraid to do it. I love him with all my heart but he wants children and I don't.

You see, Miss McDonald, our family was large. I was the oldest, and I always had to care for the younger ones. It was terrible, and I have always said I would never marry, or if I did I would not want any children. I have told him everything, just as I am telling you; but he says I will change. Should I marry him, feeling the way I do, or what should I do? I hate the thought of giving him up because I love him so. The time is drawing near, and I can not decide what to do. I will be waiting patiently for an answer in your column.

If any of your readers have had a similar case in mind I hope they will write and let us know how things turned out. I read the thought of starting all over again the miseries of scrambling, crying babies and all the old night-mare that was my childhood and young girlhood. One creeping, one old enough to fall downstairs, one in arms and the rest not able to do for themselves. Do you think I will forget this? Will I change? JUST TRYING.

Yes, you will change. The deplorable, indefensible condition that made your youth hideous have left their mark upon you in the form of a deep-seated aversion to children. But when you are quietly settled in your home you will find naturally and normally to look forward to the day when your home will be complete, and justify its existence.

And when the day comes you will wonder how you ever dreamed of going to fall downstairs, one in arms and the rest not able to do for themselves. Do you think I will forget this? Will I change? JUST TRYING.

Yes, you will change. The deplorable, indefensible condition that made your youth hideous have left their mark upon you in the form of a deep-seated aversion to children. ## JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

TRAVEL INSTRUCTIONS.
When you want to make a trip
Any motor club will hand you
Printed nicely on a slip
Routes which at your town will land

Dangerous curves will all be shown:
Paved an gravel roads make known;
Where are workmen still employed;
Just what stretches to avoid.
Everything before you've started
For your guidance will be charted.
And they'll tell you as they show it:
The time is drawing near, and I can
Not decide what to do. I will be waiting Patiently for an answer in your column.

"What's the way to reach the top?"
Asks a youth, at life's beginning.
Age has had so many stops
Seeking what is worth the winning.
That it has a printed slip
Charting such a dangerous trip.

"Keep the narrow road ahead,
Watch the curves and use your head.
Do whatever duty asks,
Give your best to all your tasks.
Never for one minute think
You are strong enough to drink.
If you stop too long to play
You are apt to lose the way."

"Keep your name and record clear,
Never cheat and never lie.
Follow this road, year by year
And you'll get there by and by."
Age has made the trip and gravelly
Tells the youth to journey bravely.
But he wonders later on
When the happy-heart has gone,
If the lad has kept the known way
Or has turned to go his own way.
Many seem to fear the long way.
So they venture on the wrong way.
And they finish, worn and tired
In the rut, forever ridged.

MODISH MITZI

We didn't expect to see the Goofer again this week, and neither did Mitz. She told him she was going to be busy finding out about Paris styles in a serious way. The Goofer was not downhearted. He realized he couldn't compete with Paris fashions, but he remembered (he is so thoughtful) all his cousins and his sisters and his aunts.

The Goofer went to see the Paris styles, too. He even bought a lot and now he wants expert opinion on them. # WILLIE K, OUTSIDER, WINS BOWIE RACE BY HEAD

Willie K Runs Second to Filly

Winner Hangs on in Stretch Drive, Beating 4-Horse Field.

Be Still, McTague Up, Outruns Lucy Ann in the Fifth.

By CHARLES A. WATSON.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, April 12.—Willie K, the Capitol Handicap winner, went down to defeat in the Mount Rainier Stakes, a race for 4-year-olds and upward at a mile and 70 yards, when the Wild Rose Farm's Crossco, making his first start at Bowie after a winter at Fair Lakes, won the feature of the day leading Willie K to the wire by a head in 1:46 1/2.

Crossco, a son of the late champion, won the race by a head in 1:46 1/2. Willie K, who was second, was beaten by a head in 1:47 1/2. The race was a close one, with Willie K leading until the stretch, when Crossco made his move and won by a head.

Starter Milton sent four horses away to a walking start in the fourth race, with Shasta Lad, the New Orleans sprinter, taking the track and setting the pace to the stretch. Crossco was second, with Lieutenant II running third. Willie K was running fourth, well in hand.

Rounding the turn, Crossco took the lead and Willie K moved up to second place under a mild drive by Jockey D. Merger.

Crossco worked his way out to the middle of the track and won by a head from Willie K, who made his run too late to overtake the leader. Lieutenant II finished third, eight lengths behind Willie K.

A nice lot of youngsters faced the barrier in the opening dash of 4 furlongs, and J. L. Stupendous won the scramble with plenty to spare, leading Donna Light to the wire by a head and a half.

Curdie broke on top, but was pinched when Jockey Moon did not keep the Widener filly in the running. Jockey Ambrose put Stupendous in the lead shortly after the barrier, and the daughter of Trojan was never headed, winning over a slow track in 49 seconds flat. Donna Light was second, with Sport, the favorite, finishing third.

Trappy accounted for the second race, of 6 furlongs, when he broke on top of a field of five-year-olds and ran to the post and led all the way under a capable ride by A. Robertson, winning by two lengths in 1:14.

Gold Bet closed plenty around the oval, but could not overtake the winner. Charles J. S. was third, defeating Polar Sea, a filly, by a nose for third money. Polar Sea, off a bad race, came fast through the stretch and would have been in another stride. Polar Sea ran as if C. L. Whitting's filly was an easy winner in the 6 1/2 furlong sprint. Breaking on top, the Meridian filly was rated along in front and galloped away from her field to win by five lengths. Little Asbestos, running second from the half pole, finished second with Maxie third. McAliffie ran out on the stretch turn and finished under the judges stand. The running time was 1:19 3/5.

A fair lot of 3-year-olds met in the fifth race at a mile and 70 yards and it resulted in a romp for the B. S. Cutler filly, Be Still, who led Lucie Ann to the wire by four lengths in 1:17.

Off to a good start Paganetta took the pace with Be Still second and Star King third. After rounding the first turn Be Still went into the lead with Lucy Ann second and Fire Fairy third. Be Still went out in front at the head of the stretch and won well in hand. Lucy Ann was second, fifteen lengths ahead of the Randolph colt, Star King, who finished third.

The Blue Ribbon stable's Robert Mandell won the seventh race with "Chubby" Leonard in the saddle.

It was a runaway affair over the mile and sixteenth race for players, but Robert Mandell looked like a stake horse as he breezed around the oval far in the lead of a trailing field to win by four lengths at the finish in 1:30 3/5.

Robert Mandell went into the lead as the barrier came, increased his advantage to three lengths on the back stretch. Drama was running second, with Everglade third. When the turn was reached Leonard had Robert Mandell five lengths ahead of the field, making no mistakes.

Everglade was now running second with Drama third. Everglade made an effort to overcome the great lead gained by Robert Mandell, but he failed to stretch and finished second, with Lucie Ann third. Mandell never came out of a pull during the entire race.

A slight rain started to fall as the ten players went to the post for the sixth race of a mile and a sixteenth for four-year-olds and upward. Harry Carroll, running in improved form, was returned the winner under a corking ride by Jockey Eddie Barnes, who galloped his mount down the stretch to win with ease by six lengths in 1:50 1/5.

Starter Milton worked another good walking start and First Edition went first to show his nose to the front. At the first turn Highland Chief took the lead for a short period when Know Me Gnome went to the front. Know Me Gnome continued to lead at the three-quarters, with Harry Carroll in fifth place. Barnes was now moving Harry Carroll up with great strides and Know Me Gnome was now leading.

Into the stretch Harry Carroll took the commanding position and won going away. Commissioner Cahill was second and Fenlight finished third, after saving much ground on the turn into the stretch.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROBERT MANDELL, $3.90, $2.90, $2.40; EVERGLADE, $3.90, $2.90, $2.40; LUCIE ANN, $2.90, $2.40, $2.00.

ROBERT MANDELL opened a wide lead early and won galloping. EVERGLADE closed fast and was next best. LUCIE ANN was running strong at end.

DIGNUS FINISHING FAR IN FRONT IN THIRD OF DAY.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CROSSCO, $19.50, $10.00, $7.00; WILLIE K, $2.90, $2.00; LUCIE ANN, $2.90, $2.00.

CROSSCO was out on top, but was pinched when Jockey Moon did not keep the Widener filly in the running. Jockey Ambrose put Stupendous in the lead shortly after the barrier, and the daughter of Trojan was never headed, winning over a slow track in 49 seconds flat. Donna Light was second, with Sport, the favorite, finishing third.

Trappy accounted for the second race, of 6 furlongs, when he broke on top of a field of five-year-olds and ran to the post and led all the way under a capable ride by A. Robertson, winning by two lengths in 1:14.

Gold Bet closed plenty around the oval, but could not overtake the winner. Charles J. S. was third, defeating Polar Sea, a filly, by a nose for third money. Polar Sea, off a bad race, came fast through the stretch and would have been in another stride. Polar Sea ran as if C. L. Whitting's filly was an easy winner in the 6 1/2 furlong sprint. Breaking on top, the Meridian filly was rated along in front and galloped away from her field to win by five lengths. Little Asbestos, running second from the half pole, finished second with Maxie third. McAliffie ran out on the stretch turn and finished under the judges stand. The running time was 1:19 3/5.

A fair lot of 3-year-olds met in the fifth race at a mile and 70 yards and it resulted in a romp for the B. S. Cutler filly, Be Still, who led Lucie Ann to the wire by four lengths in 1:17.

Off to a good start Paganetta took the pace with Be Still second and Star King third. After rounding the first turn Be Still went into the lead with Lucy Ann second and Fire Fairy third. Be Still went out in front at the head of the stretch and won well in hand. Lucy Ann was second, fifteen lengths ahead of the Randolph colt, Star King, who finished third.

The Blue Ribbon stable's Robert Mandell won the seventh race with "Chubby" Leonard in the saddle.

It was a runaway affair over the mile and sixteenth race for players, but Robert Mandell looked like a stake horse as he breezed around the oval far in the lead of a trailing field to win by four lengths at the finish in 1:30 3/5.

Robert Mandell went into the lead as the barrier came, increased his advantage to three lengths on the back stretch. Drama was running second, with Everglade third. When the turn was reached Leonard had Robert Mandell five lengths ahead of the field, making no mistakes.

Everglade was now running second with Drama third. Everglade made an effort to overcome the great lead gained by Robert Mandell, but he failed to stretch and finished second, with Lucie Ann third. Mandell never came out of a pull during the entire race.

A slight rain started to fall as the ten players went to the post for the sixth race of a mile and a sixteenth for four-year-olds and upward. Harry Carroll, running in improved form, was returned the winner under a corking ride by Jockey Eddie Barnes, who galloped his mount down the stretch to win with ease by six lengths in 1:50 1/5.

Starter Milton worked another good walking start and First Edition went first to show his nose to the front. At the first turn Highland Chief took the lead for a short period when Know Me Gnome went to the front. Know Me Gnome continued to lead at the three-quarters, with Harry Carroll in fifth place. Barnes was now moving Harry Carroll up with great strides and Know Me Gnome was now leading.

C. J. BELL CELEBRATES SEVENTH BIRTHDAY

Stock Exchange Members Pay Tribute to Financier for Record as Citizen.

CUMBERTI HEADS BANK

By F. W. PATTERSON.

Charles J. Bell, chairman of the board of the American Security & Trust Co., one of the most active of local bank officials, yesterday paused to pause in his hobby yesterday long enough to acknowledge the congratulations of his host of friends who had not lost track of the fact that the day marked the seventh anniversary of his birth.

While his office at the bank was a flower of floral decorations sent by his many friends as well as by the officers and personnel of the institution which he heads, it remained for the Washington Stock Exchange, suitably celebrating the day, to mark the fact that he has been a member of the local exchange for 43 years and has been its president during many years, as well as a member of the governing committee, was forced to join in a ceremony which developed into one of the greatest demonstrations that has taken place on the floor of the local trading mart. Following the regular session, Charles Carroll Glover, president of the Washington Stock Exchange, spoke briefly of the life of Charles J. Bell, not only as a Stock Exchange member but as a citizen, and then presented a nomination to a place in the roster of citizens who had contributed more than the average share of help in the upbuilding of the city.

Calling on a special committee consisting of Eugene E. Thompson, of Crane, Harris, & Co., and the vice president of the District National Bank, for a concrete expression of the esteem in which the members held the 70-year-old member, a handsome silver punch bowl, suitably inscribed, was presented Mr. Bell, with the thought expressed in the presentation of the gift was but a meager expression of the esteem in which the membership held Mr. Bell.

In addition to the membership, which was out in full force, several men prominent in the financial life of the city were present at the celebration, but those asked to attend were those who had had some connection with the banking advance of the city in the early days of the Republic, and some of this energetic citizen, Albin K. Parris, who has been a member of the exchange since the second year of its life, was unable to attend, but sent a message of congratulations from the Garfield Hospital, where he is convalescing from a recent operation. Other of the older members who were present, because of his inability to attend by reason of a business engagement, was Charles W. Parris, who, like Mr. Bell, has been a factor in the development of the Nation's Capital.

Exchange Bank Election.

Fernando Cumberti was yesterday elected president of the International Exchange Bank to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Joseph Schiavone, who resigned to carry out the wishes of his physician that he take a prolonged holiday.

Mr. Cumberti, who recently was elected a vice president of the institution, following his return to Washington, is a substantial stockholder of the bank, which he served as vice president in 1922 and until his departure for Europe in 1924, will devote his entire time to the management of the bank.

Mr. Cumberti has all the qualifications which a senior officer of the international exchange bank should have. He was born in Bologna, Italy, and coming to this country some fifteen years ago, was associated with the Italian Embassy, later taking the office of vice president of the Federal Securities Corporation of New York, after a year's tour in his home country in 1924.

The growth of the International Exchange since its inception is a monument to the energies of Joseph Schiavone, the retiring president, who has disposed of his majority holdings in the bank so as to make the way clear for the new administration. His retirement, which started seven years ago as the result of the vision of Joseph Schiavone, has been a success under his guidance and from the beginning of the opening day, when deposits recorded totaled $47,000, the deposit item had risen to more than $800,000. The new regime plans to continue the policies of the bank which brought it up to its present high standard of efficiency, and intend to inaugurate a policy which will encourage the future growth of this prosperous and growing institution.

The following were also elected to the board of directors: Henry M. Camp, of Harriman & Co., and F. M. Tietz, president of the Atlantic State Bank of Brooklyn, N. Y., and the Harlem Bank of Commerce, all of the same city, as well as a director of numerous financial institutions of New York and Brooklyn.

Mr. Schiavone, who resigned yesterday, will depart shortly for an extended tour of the United States, followed by a trip to Italy and Greece. His retirement will be located at his office at Fifth and H streets northwest, where he will continue in business as a realtor, foreign exchange broker, specialist on the Government service, and publisher of El Citadino, the weekly Italian publication, which he owns.

Stock Exchange Quiet.

Yesterday's session of the Washington Stock Exchange was a quiet affair compared to the earlier days of the week, but despite the lack of volume trading there was no falling off in the price tone.

Capital Traction sold at 109 1/2, Potomac Electric Power 4 1/2, sold in one lot following at 108 1/2 and wound up the session at 108 1/2. Washington Gas rights continued to trade at 107 1/2, and new high ground, 210 shares changing hands in three lots at 107 1/2.

Columbia Gas & Electric preferred proved popular and sales were recorded at 100 1/2 opening, and 100 1/2 on closing transaction. Federal American Co. common gained with an advance from 38 1/2 on opening sale to 39 on final sale. National Mortgage & Investment preferred sold in two 50-share lots at 84. Peoples Drug Stores preferred rec'd further forward with two sales recorded at 128. Merchants Trust & De Storage preferred sold in two small lots at 107 1/2 for the first block and 107 1/2 for the second. Bond trading was held to sales in Washington Gas Light 6s sent 6 1/2 at 108 for the $500, and 106 for the $300, and Potomac Electric Power 6s at 104 1/2.

New Mortgage Issues.

Shannon & Luchs, Inc., mortgage investment bankers, are offering a new issue totaling of $300,000, the Chandler Building, 1421 I street northwest, a five-year first mortgage notes, due April 2, 1933. The notes are issued in denominations of $5,000, $2,500, $1,000, $500, $250, $100, with interest payable semi-annually October 2 and April 2.

The site of the Chandler Building is one of the most advantageous locations in the heart of the financial district. The building will be 11 stories high of fireproof steel and reinforced concrete. Title and insurance sufficient to protect fully all holders of the first mortgage notes has been written. Title to the building has been certified by the Real Estate Title Insurance Co. and the Columbia Title Insurance Co. while completion of the building has been guaranteed by a surety bond.

HOME BEAUTIFYING KNOWLEDGE TAUGHT AT POST EXHIBITION

Just What an Ideal Residence Is Will Be Explained in Six Dwellings.

COMBINATIONS OF ART AND COMFORT SHOWN

Richer Arrangements of All Kinds of Rooms are to Be Displayed.

What is an ideal home?
How should a modern dwelling be decorated and equipped? What style and what arrangement of furniture is at once most tastefully beautiful and most practically comfortable?

It would help any one interested in home beautifying in answering these questions if they could spend an hour or two inspecting a home of the size and cost of the one they have in mind, which was completely furnished and decorated according to the latest developments in the art of home beautifying.

The Washington Post, in cooperation with merchants, realtors and homebuilders of Washington, is going to give the people of this city an opportunity of doing that very thing in the "Home Beautiful" educational exhibit, which will be open for public inspection for eight days, beginning April 22 and ending April 29.

Six homes, varying in cost from $47,500 to $12,950, have been selected as models and these will be completely furnished in a style suitable to their type and cost under the expert supervision of Mrs. R. H. Thomas, of Richmond, Va., who is nationally known for her taste and ability in the art of home furnishing.

Object to See Taste.
Not every homemaker is able to invest in a $47,500 dwelling. Those who can do so, however, are all the more anxious, because of the value of the investment, to make their home the most beautiful and comfortable that can be had. They do not want an expensively furnished home in glaring ill taste, or one which for all its cost is not a real cozy home.

The house of this price in the "Home Beautiful" exhibit will show how easy art and utility can be combined in all its appointments. The color schemes, the arrangement of furniture, the labor-saving electrical appliances will represent the newest ideas in these important elements of a home.

This exhibit will give you an opportunity to look clear through such a house and see the many rooms, each furnished around some personality and if the price of this house is beyond your fondest hopes, remember that five other homes, much less costly, but just as tastefully equipped, will be shown in this exhibit.

One of the homes is an apartment in a modern cooperatively owned apartment building at 1861 Crescent place.
This apartment is the furthest from the Washington as well as many other large cities, home ownership in an apartment community is fast growing into popular favor, because of its many advantages in home ownership.

In Another Home.
Another home valued at $42,500 has been built especially for this exhibit.
It is located in Wesley Heights and has been built to reproduce the real early American farmhouse. It is being decorated and furnished under the supervision of the interior decorating department of Dulin & Martin, which firm will carry out in the furnishings every suggestion of the early American period.

Another unit in this educational movement is valued at $27,500 and is located in Woodley Park, and another valued at $29,750 is located in Chevy Chase. These two houses will be furnished with the cost of the houses in mind and will be presented as the correctly furnished houses of this type and cost.

The house located in Leland valued at $12,950 while the least costly of the six homes forming the exhibit will be just as pretty, just as attractive and artistic as the most costly home in the exhibit. Young couples about to start housekeeping and older day dwellers are thinking in terms of such houses, as this one and it will perhaps have the broadest appeal of any of the exhibit houses.

The "Home Beautiful" exhibit will be open daily from 1 to 10 p. m. April 22-29. Visitors will be welcome during these hours. A reception committee will be on hand at each house to answer questions and give information.

Locations of Houses.
The six houses will be open daily from 1 to 10 p. m., beginning April 22 and continue through April 29. You may visit the houses as often as you wish as guests of The Washington Post and cooperating merchants.

House No. 1.—Valued at $47,500, located at 3838 Cathedral avenue, built and loaned by Charles D. Sager, realtor

W. & J. Sloane.

House No. 2.—Located corner Forty-fifth and Garfield streets, Wesley Heights, valued at $42,500, built and loaned by W. C. & N. Miller, realtors and home builders. To be furnished by Dulin & Martin under supervision of this firm's interior decorating department.

in cooperatively owned apartment building, 1661 Crescent place, loaned by M. & R. B. Warren. To be furnished for the exhibit by W. & J. Sloane.

Gibson Will Inspect Institutions of City

Representative Gibson (Republican), of Vermont, chairman of the House subcommittee which is investigating the District Government, announced yesterday, that he and his colleagues would start out on a tour of inspection Monday. They will first visit the Police Court, and may later visit the District Jail and other District penal institutions.

This tour will be in connection with a study the subcommittee has been making of congestion in the Police Court. The Bureau of Efficiency has recommended changes in procedure to relieve this congestion. After making a first-hand study the members of the subcommittee will draw their own conclusions.

ZIHLMAN PLANS CHANGE IN TEACHER SALARY LAW

Introduces Bill Affecting 80
Instructors in Junior High Schools.

HAS BUDGET APPROVAL

A bill amending the school teachers' salary bill of 1927 was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative
Zihlman, of Maryland, chairman of the District committee. The bill was drafted by the Board of Education and has been approved by the Bureau of the Budget.

Under the terms of one provision of the bill, 75 or 80 teachers who were transferred from the elementary schools to the junior high schools before the salary bill went into effect are made eligible for promotion at junior high salary rates. These teachers now are receiving $100 less than the other teachers.

The Board of Education at first recommended that the pay of these teachers be raised to a level with the pay being received by those who were transferred to the junior high schools after the salary bill went into effect. This would have cost about $8,000. The Bureau of the Budget, however, disapproved this recommendation, and suggested that the 75 or 80 teachers be made eligible for promotion, the increased salary to be given them after they are promoted. This suggestion is incorporated in the bill introduced yesterday.

COOLIDGE PRESENTS MEDAL TO STEPHAN

Others of District Guardsmen
Also Honored for Long
Time in Service.

President Coolidge awarded gold medals yesterday to Maj. Gen. Anton Stephan, commanding the District of Columbia National Guard, for 40 years continuous service, and Col. John W.
Oehmann, 121st Engineers, and Sgt.
Francis J. Ennis, Company A, 872d Infantry, for 25 years' service in the organization.

The presentation took place on the White House lawn in the presence of Secretary of War Davis, Maj. Gen.
Creed C. Hammond, chief, Militia Bureau; Col. Osmun Latrobe, military aid to the President; Lieut. Col. Louis C.
Brinton, Jr., adjutant general, District of Columbia; Lieut. Col. Peyton G. Neville, adjutant, Twenty-ninth Division, composed of District, Virginia and Maryland Guard units, and Capt. Sidney Morgan, Maj. Gen. Stephan's aid.

Private Edwin M. Tansill, 121st Engineers, who has had 25 years' service, is now in South Carolina and will receive a similar medal later.

CAMERA RECORDS THE DAY'S NEWS

NO POLITICS? Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, surrounded by a group of cheering admirers at the Union Station, when he stopped off here last night on his way to Asheville, N. C., for a vacation, during which, he declares, he will not consider politics.

HONORED. President Coolidge yesterday presented Maj. Gen. Anton Stephan with the Continuous Service Medal for his service of 40 years in the District of Columbia National Guard, of which Gen. Stephan is now commandant. Others decorated were Col. John W. Oehmann, to the right of the President, for 25 years of service, and Sgt. Francis J. Ennis, colored, for 20 years of service. Assistant Secretary of War Charles A. Robbins is in civilian clothes. Lieut. Col. Louis C. Brinton is at the extreme right.

VISITORS. The Hon. J. A. Hanan, former minister of education of New Zealand and attorney general, and his wife, Mrs. Hanan, leaving the White House after paying their respects to President Coolidge yesterday. They are making a tour of the world.

Two Women Hurt As Car Turns Turtle

Two women were injured yesterday afternoon when an automobile in which they were riding turned over after skidding and crashing into a telegraph pole on the Annapolis highway a mile beyond Bladensburg, Md.

Miss Levlina Hearn, 68 years old, 1014 Eleventh street northwest, suffered a fractured arm, and Miss Lillian Wines, 37 years old, 1109 Ninth street southeast, suffered bruises on her face and legs. Both women were taken to Casualty Hospital. Miss Wines was driving when the accident occurred. It was said.

Blanton Given Time To File Appeal Brief

Representative Thomas L. Blanton's request to be allowed until midnight April 21 to file a printed brief to support his appeal in the Staples case was granted by the Commissioners yesterday.

The Commissioners addressed a communication to Blanton acknowledging receipt of his notice of appeal and extending his time for its perfection.

Suit for $29,468 Dismissed.
The suit of Arthur D. Bate, of Milford, Md., by which he attempted to recover $29,468 in Circuit Court from Katharine C. Bate, of 1212 Crittenden street northwest, as being due for loans and unpaid salary, was dismissed yesterday by the plaintiff through Attorney Thomas S. Ellis.

"BUDDIES." Mayor "Jimmy" Walker of New York City, who accepted the Lee Memorial on Stone Mountain, Stone Mountain, Ga., in behalf of the Nation, holding Robert E. Lee 4th, 5-year-old New Yorker and great-grandson of the Confederate leader, who gave the signal for the unveiling recently of the memorial. Mayor Walker and the boy became such great buddies the mayor offered the boy a place on his official staff. The offer was accepted.

Commissioners Ask Traffic Light Plan

The District Commissioners yesterday invited the Chamber of Commerce to abandon the field of generalities and make specific recommendations for installation of electric traffic signals in the "downtown business area."

From time to time the Chamber of Commerce has recommended, in general terms only, that such lights be located downtown. Daniel E. Cargis, secretary to the Commissioners' board, was instructed to write the organization asking it to name the street intersections at which it wanted the signals placed.

Democratic Women To Hear M'Kellar

Beginning a series of addresses on current politics dealing with legislation pending in Congress, Senator Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee, will address the luncheon meeting of the Woman's National Democratic Club today at noon in the clubhouse, 1526 New Hampshire avenue northwest. The subject will be "The Nicaragua Canal."

On the morning of April 20 at 10:30 o'clock Dr. George F. Farham, of George Washington University, will lecture under the auspices of the club on public speaking. These lectures are being arranged by Mrs. C. C. Dill, wife of Senator Dill, of Washington.

'SOCIAL REGISTER' CASE REACHES GRAND JURY

Proceedings Against Rheinstrom Held Up by Lack of Needed Witnesses.

TWO MAY BE SUFFICIENT

The case of Joseph Rheinstrom, who is accused of having induced certain persons in social and official Washington by means of a so-called social register scheme, was partly presented to the grand jury yesterday by Assistant District Attorney Joseph V. Connolly. The investigation was halted because of a lack of witnesses, only two persons appearing to testify against the accused.

They were Mrs. Louise Waller, 2136 Wyoming avenue northwest, who responded to a summons and Jo V. Morgan, an attorney and adviser to the Social Register Publishing Co. and complainant against Rheinstrom. The latter appeared voluntarily.

Ten persons were summoned to testify yesterday. Mr. Connolly announced that he would make another attempt to persuade the others to appear, before he contemplates instituting contempt proceedings against the alleged delinquent witnesses.

It is hardly likely that contempt proceedings will be instituted as it is known that the information furnished by Mrs. Waller is sufficient for an indictment charging one offense of false pretenses.

Rheinstrom is alleged to have received $100 from Mrs. Waller to insert her name in a so-called social register which the police now claim had no standing in the social world, or else did not actually exist.

The operations of Rheinstrom were the subject of a complaint made by Mrs. Waller and an investigation of her complaint led to his arrest. The investigation will be resumed as soon as Connolly obtains the necessary witnesses, as soon as he finds an "open day."

CITY WORKERS' LOCAL VOTES INCORPORATION

Association Orders Secretary to Take Steps to Apply for Charter.

Application for a charter of incorporation in the District of Columbia will be made shortly by the City Employees Association, it was decided last night at a meeting of Local No. 1, held at Musicians Hall, 1006 E street.

A. W. Reynolds, recording secretary, was instructed to employ counsel to attend to the necessary details. He reported that since the first of the year the organization has taken in approximately 1,000 new members. The association passed resolutions endorsing the Welch salary increase bill and the Federal employees' retirement bill pending in Congress.

The executive committee was instructed to investigate conditions in the street-cleaning department, which it is claimed, is granting no leave to employees of the Southeast stables and repair shops until after July 1. Donations of 85 each were received from George Miller, of this city, and William E. Thomas, of New Jersey. Local No. 1 hereafter will meet only on the second Thursday of each month, instead of semi-monthly as heretofore.

Paving Assessment Attacked.

Mrs. Louise Carry Becke, Lincoln apartments, and Miss Mina Carry, 1870 Wyoming avenue northwest, daughters of the late Albert Carry, filed suits in Equity Court yesterday against the District Commissioners for the cancellation of assessments of $507 and $519 which were levied under the Board of assessment for the paving of E street northwest. Mrs. Becke owns property at Ninth and E streets and Miss Carry owns property at Twelfth and E streets.

Attorneys James C. Wilke and Henry A. Schweinhaut appeared for the plaintiffs, who contend that the assessments are illegal.

MINIATURE PLANES OF HAND-LAUNCHED TYPE TAKE TO AIR

Junior Class Entrants' Model
Circles Field for 68 Seconds.

ADVERSE WINDS TEMPER RECORDS OF DESIGNERS

Kites Contest Scheduled at Meridian Hill Tomorrow Afternoon.

Washington's miniature aircraft tournament yesterday entered its fourth lap leading to the June semi-finals, when model planes entered by 25 youthful contestants were launched in flight from Bolling Field in the second and outdoor contest of the tournament.

Adverse winds and flying conditions that were far from ideal, even for the regulation Army craft flown from the air base, served to temper the records made by the amateur designers. But the big planes were having their troubles, too. One or two of the Army's ships were mired on the muddy field. Yesterday's contest was limited to scientific models of the hand-launched type. Langitt Wilby, a junior class entrant, carried off the honors of the day when his well-balanced ship circled above the field for 68 seconds. Young Wilby was first in the slingshot glider contest at the Monument Grounds.

Senior Class Group.

Floyd Fish was first yesterday in the senior class group, his hand-launched model remaining aloft for 52.4 seconds. Fish had made a splendid showing in the preliminary preliminaries at indoor try-outs at Macfarland Junior High School, but had met with misfortune in the outdoor contest when he was made on the flight.

Wilby was one of two entrants to qualify in the junior class yesterday, the other contestant failing by a wayside in attempting to make the 10-second flight required for this purpose. The second contestant to qualify in this group was Everett Meeks, who took second place in the junior class, with a 20-second flight.

William French, whose model ship soared above the field for 30 seconds, was runner-up in the senior class, and George Rosen, who was able to make only one of the three delayed flights allowed each entrant, when he arrived late at the field, was third in this group, his plane remaining aloft 11 4-5 seconds.

Judges of Contest.

Serving as judges in yesterday's contest, which was held near the southern end of the long field, immediately adjacent to the Naval Air Station, were Lieut. Arthur I. Em of the Army air service; Walter Hinton, who piloted the NC-4 on Commander Byrd's first transatlantic flight, and Paul Edward Gardner, the National Museum's technical adviser of the tournament.

There were many crashes and casualties among the tiny craft. One of the equipped repair men was kept always at hand, and the entrants were not limited to use of one plane, the contest was not delayed.

Standing of place winning contestants who have entered the tournament to date were announced following yesterday's meeting by Miss Sibyl Baker, director of the Community Center Department, which is conducting the contests in cooperation with the Capital Model Aero Club. They are as follows:

Senior Class—Conant Emmons, 22 points; Allen Moulton, 19 points; William French, 7 points; Herbert Dorsey, 7 points; Harold Greenfield, 6 points; Floyd Fish, 6 points; George Emmons, 4 points; and William Fulford, 3 points.

Junior Class Group.

Junior class—Thomas Robbins, 19 points; Langitt Wilby, 14 points; John Summer, 5 points; Forrester Wilkinson, 5 points; George Bell, 5 points; Everett Meeks, 4 points; Jack Kipp, 4 points; Bernard von Bergewitz, 3 points; Joseph Lynch, 2 points; and Charles Baker, Jr., 1 point.

The fifth event of the series of contests will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at Meridian Hill Park, where the field will be flown by senior and junior class contestants. Although a special class for adults in each of the events of the tournament was recently created by the committee in charge, Miss Baker said yesterday there have been no registrations in this group.

In addition to prizes offered by the Community Center department, the National Aeronautical Association and the Capital Model Aero Club, the Washington Post has offered a trip to Detroit to the winners in the June semi-finals of the hand-launched indoor and outdoor plane contests, where the planes entered conform to the Stout and Mulvill requirements. The Post also offers a trip to Denby as the winner of the June scale model contest for workmanship.

Jackson Execution Delayed to May 15

The execution of Philip Jackson, colored, which was scheduled for April 17, was postponed yesterday until May 15 by Justice Frederick L. Siddons in Criminal Court at the request of John H. Wilson, counsel for the condemned man. The United States Supreme Court will be asked to review the case.

Jackson was convicted of the charge of having feloniously assaulted a white woman in the Capitol Grounds on February 18, 1927. Wilson will inform the highest tribunal that the lower courts erred in not permitting Jackson to prove that he is now insane.

OVER HERE—OVER THERE—

GREAT STRETCHES OF OPEN FIELD, SWEEPING IN LONG DESCENTS TO THE RIVER BED OF THE OURCQ—THEN FRINGES OF TREES AND BEYOND, THE SAME UPWARD SWEEP AGAIN—THESE WERE THE HEIGHTS OF THE OURCQ. IT WAS A GREAT PANORAMA, DOTTED WITH ADVANCING SOLDIERS.

ON THE RIGHT OF THE ADVANCING 42nd DIVISION, WERE MEN OF THE 55th BRIGADE OF THE 28th (PENNSYLVANIA) DIVISION ATTACKING THE VILLAGE OF FRESNES. ON THEIR LEFT WAS THE THIRD DIVISION, WHICH HAD FOUGHT ITS WAY THROUGH FROM JAUL-GONNE. THUS THREE AMERICAN DIVISIONS WERE MOVING TOGETHER TOWARDS THE HEIGHTS OF THE OURCQ.

The Heights of the Ourcq

WOULD THE GERMANS, NOW THE SALIENT WAS PUSHED INTO A BOW, MAKE A STAND ON THE OURCQ? THEY DID—BUT IN SPITE OF A WITHERING SHELL AND MACHINE GUN FIRE, THE DOUGH-BOYS STEADILY ADVANCED.

THAT NIGHT THE 42nd HAD SOME OF ITS ELEMENTS ACROSS THE OURCQ—AND WITH THE GAINS MADE BY THE 28th AND THIRD DIVISIONS—JULY 27, 1918, ENDED ANOTHER RED LETTER DAY FOR THE FIGHTING YANKS.
